CANADA: The Euthanasia Capital of the World [MAiD]

By Lynn Frances

Kiano Vafaeian was depressed—at 23, with diabetes and the loss of vision in one eye, he didn't have a job, a girlfriend, or much of a future if you were to ask him. But he did have one thing planned: his death—scheduled for September 22, 2022. Kiano's 46-year-old mother, Margaret Marsilla, only found out about his plan after she logged into his email account out of concern. She read the doctor's instructions: "Please arrive at 8:30 am. I will ask for the nurse at 8:45 am, and I will start the procedure at around 9:00 am. Procedure will be completed a few minutes after it starts." Kiano was told he could bring his dog with him as long as someone would be present to take care of it after his death.

The procedure entailed administering two drugs—first, a coma-inducing agent. Then, a neuromuscular blocker would stop Kiano's breathing. He would be dead in under ten minutes.

Two weeks before the appointment, Kiano's mother called the doctor scheduled to kill her son. She recorded the call and shared it with The Free Press. Posing as Joann, she told the doctor she was diabetic and blind and that she wanted to die by Christmas. The doctor told her she would qualify for MAiD if she were over 18, had an OHIP card, and was experiencing "suffering that cannot be remediated or treated in some way that's acceptable to you." He then stated that he could conduct his assessment via Zoom. Fortunately, after Marsilla shared her story publicly, the doctor texted to cancel her son's death.

She saved her son's life. But other families have not been so fortunate.

For example, Alan Nichols, as reported by The Associated Press, "was basically put to death" while hospitalized for suicidal ideation, according to his brother. When applying for euthanasia, Alan cited hearing loss as his only medical condition.

These procedures are done under Canada's Medical Assistance in Dying (MAiD) program. MAiD was legalized in 2016 with Bill C-14, following the 2015 Supreme Court ruling in Carter v. Canada that deemed a blanket ban on assisted dying violated the Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

Initially, a physician would only give lethal medications to patients who met all criteria: a serious illness or disability, in an "advanced state" of decline that could not be reversed, experiencing unbearable physical or mental suffering, and when natural death was "reasonably foreseeable."

When critics expressed concern that this program would be extended to people who were depressed and stressed, Prime Minister Justin Trudeau declared this "simply isn't something that ends up happening," citing jurisdictions elsewhere in the world with similar laws.

Well, today, this is something that is happening. In March 2021, Bill C-7 lifted the criterion that natural death must be "reasonably foreseeable." Then, in early 2023, the federal government's Special Joint Committee on MAiD reported on the proposal to expand euthanasia on March 17, 2024, to Canadians whose sole condition is a mental disorder.

After this announcement, Dr. John Maher, a psychiatrist at the Canadian Mental Health Association and editor-in-chief of the Journal of Medical Ethics in Mental Health, thoughtfully commented: "Inducement to suicide while denying mental health care to two-thirds of Canadians who urgently need it is an unconscionable failing. MAiD for mental illness violates the Supreme Court requirement to preserve life whenever possible. Directly undermining suicide prevention efforts is an insidious perversion of our mental health care duty. Mental illness is treatable, and death is not treatment."

More disturbing than expanding MAiD to qualify the depressed and mentally ill, it was considered (thankfully not approved) to extend euthanasia to babies. Dr. Louis Roy from the Quebec College of Physicians told the Commons' Special Joint Committee of MAiD that his organization "believes that minors could, with their tutors or parents, request MAiD based on persistent and intolerable suffering. The same option is for babies born with severe deformations or medical syndromes whose life expectancy and suffering are such that surviving is null. The Netherlands uses this option, which we could explore. The Committee addressed the issue of elders tired of being alive, what we in geriatric care call sliding into existential suffering or emptiness. We don't have a clear answer for these cases, but we would like to continue researching."

In December 2022, Christine Gauthier, a veteran and former Paralympian, disclosed to a House of Commons Committee that after five years of seeking assistance to install a wheelchair ramp at her home, Veteran Affairs offered her MAiD instead.

In the same month, the CEO of the Mississauga Food Bank, Meghan Nicolls, said, "People are coming in asking about MAiD for help ending their lives, not because they are sick, but because they can't afford to eat."

In February 2023, MP Ed Fast presented Bill C-314,

the Mental Health Protection Act. "All mental disorders would be excluded from eligibility for a lethal injection through MAiD to prioritize suicide prevention over suicide provision and ensure death is never an acceptable, state-sanctioned option." Bill C-314 was defeated in the second reading in October 2023: 167 MPs against and 150 in favour.

One of Canada's leading experts on mental illness, Dr. K. Sonu Gaiind, Chief of Psychiatry at Sunnybrook Health Sciences Centre and former president of the Canadian Psychiatric Society, noted that the Trudeau government has dismissed his concern over no real, scientific way to distinguish types of suicidal ideation. He declared, "We now provide MAiD to more people than any other country on the planet." In October 2023, over forty experts, including Dr. Gaiind, penned a letter to MPs denouncing the Trudeau government's Euthanasia Committee and its ideological push for radical euthanasia expansion. "The Committee's recommendations place Canadians ... at risk of avoidable premature death, and if enacted, will be responsible for facilitating state-provided deaths to marginalized and suicidal Canadians who would have recovered." Dr. Gaiind later presented one of six Briefs to the Special Parliamentary Committee. "There remain no meaningful safeguards to prevent vulnerable and marginalized individuals, who could get better, from accessing MAiD during periods of despair and suicidality fueled by mental illness."

With concern about accuracy, Isaac Lamoureux of True North reported in December 2023 that Statistics Canada's annual mortality datasets do not include medically assisted deaths. Because the World Health Organization lacks an official classification for such deaths, physicians code MAiD deaths to the underlying condition for the MAiD request. Therefore, someone with cancer who dies by MAiD is classified as a cancer death.

According to Health Canada's Fourth Annual Report on Medical Assistance in Dying in Canada, there were 13,241 reported cases of medically assisted deaths in 2022—higher than any other country—accounting for 4.1% of all deaths in Canada.

If Statistics Canada included MAiD as a cause of death, it would be the sixth leading cause of death in Canada in 2022. The total number of deaths since the legalization of MAiD was reported to be 44,958.

Ironically, inside the report's front cover: "Health Canada is the federal department responsible for helping the people of Canada maintain and improve their health. Health Canada is committed to improving the lives of all of Canada's people and to making this country's population among the healthiest in the world as measured by longevity, lifestyle, and effective use of the public health care system."

Jeff Gunnarson, Toronto Vice-Chair of Campaign Life Coalition, writes, "Our healthcare system is becoming

Why Druthers? + Many Big Thanks!

By Shawn Jason

As the creator of Druthers newspaper, I honestly believe that if it wasn’t for Druthers and all the incredible people it supported in our shared mission of getting honest, important information to our fellow Canadians over the last 3 years, this country and everyone in it would be completely, royally screwed right now.

Without all that truthful information being shared among the Canadian people, the self-elected ‘overlords’ of this country & planet would surely have had a much easier time rolling forward with their agendas. (Canada was/is clearly a major target in their global manipulations.) But rather than it being an easy stroll through the park, they are being met with a large, rapidly growing energy of resistance from people who see enough of the bigger picture to know that standing up and choosing differently really is the only option.

This grass roots, people powered project has now printed nearly 10 MILLION Druthers newspapers and distributed them freely into every nook and cranny across this beautiful country we call our home. That’s a lot of people reached, a lot of seeds of thought planted and a whole lot of awareness raised about the globalists plans for humanity.

We the people truly do have the power. We just need more people to recognize that and to act accordingly. And that IS happening. Slowly but surely, yet increasingly faster, people ARE waking up and stepping up.

It is highly exciting to me to witness this and I’m deeply honoured to be playing such an integral role in this great awakening that we are all a part of, right now.

When enough of us see the source of our problems, we WILL come together and find solutions. But it begins with awareness. And that is why Druthers.

The great awakening. That is why Druthers. Humanity really is awesome. That is why Druthers. Sharing hope and inspiration with others. That is why Druthers. Helping Canadians unite and collectively choose a better path forward for us all. That is why Druthers. Truth, Love & Freedom is important. That is why Druthers. A bright future for Canada and for all life on earth. That is why Druthers.

OUR DONORS

It’s pretty amazing to me how only a few hundred people donating each month can have such a tremendous impact. Yes, we receive donations from only about 300-400 people each month and from that we raise $20k - $30k. That prints 200,000 - 300,000 copies of Druthers every single month.

That is huge, no doubt! But let’s think about that for a moment. 300 - 400 people? That’s it? From a country of 40,000,000 inhabitants?

Imagine that we have 3000 - 4000 people donating each month instead of 300 - 400. We would be printing around 2.5 million Druthers each month and waking up so many more people and saving this country so much more quickly! And consider, 4000 people is only .0001% of the population. That means if just 1 out of every 10,000 Canadians were donating each month, tyranny would fall and freedom would reign, a whole lot faster. Surely we can achieve that, yes?

To all who have been donating, THANK YOU!! Truly. I don’t think you can even begin to imagine how helpful and deep reaching into the future your contributions are for this country. You, our donors, are what makes all of this possible. You are all heroes in my books. Thank you.

TO DONATE: Easiest is to send an etransfer to admin@druthers.net or you can visit druthers.ca/donate to pitch in using a credit card or paypal.

OUR DISTRIBUTORS

Some people have more money than time. They can donate. Others have more time than money. They can distribute, and distribute they do!

The vast majority of the papers we print each month are given away freely by our passionate readers on their own accord, all over the country. Thousands of them, in fact! It’s a massive, epic, growing army of beautiful, caring people, armed only with truth, love & freedom. Armed only with Druthers. To all who have been helping distribute Druthers into your communities, I cannot thank you enough for your service to Druthers, and even more importantly, your service to your country.

10,000,000 newspapers is A LOT and I certainly couldn’t do it myself! It’s all your time, energy, love and support that keeps this project moving, month after month.

TO DISTRIBUTE: If you’re interested in helping get Druthers into your community, please read more here: druthers.ca/volunteer or just email us at info@druthers.net.

There are so many more people to thank as well. Even those who are simply sharing the word about Druthers with people they know in real life, and online too... that is tremendously helpful in growing Druthers and I thank you all, deeply. Keep spreading the word everywhere you are able!

Great change is upon us. This we do not have a choice in. We do however have a choice in where these changes lead us, but that takes a lot of heart, courage, wisdom & strength... and I know you have that in you. We all do. Let that shine and let’s make CANADA more STRONG & FREE than it’s ever been before!! We got this. Let’s do it :)

I love you. Pass it on.

With much love & gratitude,

FREEDOM WINS!

- A Petition on the House of Commons website, calling for a vote of no confidence in Justin Trudeau, closed with over 385,000 signatures — making it the most signed parliamentary e-petition in Canadian History. It expresses the loss of confidence in Trudeau and the Liberal-NDP coalition, calling for a no-confidence vote to remove Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau from office. The Liberal government has 45 calendar days to respond after an e-petition is tabled in the House of Commons.
- The State of Texas is suing Pfizer for allegedly intentionally misleading the public. The lawsuit alleges that Pfizer manipulated trial data and actively tried to censor critics. The lawsuit argues that when it was first granted an EUA, the FDA recognized that it was impossible to know how effective the shot would remain beyond two months. Yet, Pfizer deliberately created the impression that the shot had durable and sustained protections, even withholding highly relevant data from the public that demonstrated rapidly waning efficacy. This is the first major lawsuit by a state to challenge the public assertions of efficacy made by Pfizer directly.
- Public confidence in the COVID-19 vaccine appears to have waned so much that Health Canada has stopped displaying how many people are following their advice to get COVID-19 vaccinated or boosted for the umpteenth time. The last government update, which was six months ago, shows that just

- 5.7% of Canadians have received a COVID-19 vaccine in the previous six months. Confidence is also waning among healthcare professionals: CDC’s recent MMWR report noted that only 17.2% of healthcare professionals working in acute care hospitals are up-to-date on COVID-19 vaccinations.
- Slovakian Prime Minister Robert Fico vehemently denounced the unelected World Health Organization and their Pandemic Treaty in a speech, calling it “a Big Pharma creation that seeks to control governments.”
  - The newly elected government in New Zealand has opened up a full-scale independent inquiry into how the COVID-19 pandemic was handled. The inquiry was a key demand of the New Zealand First Party, which has promised to compensate people who suffered vaccine injuries and end all COVID-19 vaccine mandates.
  - Bayer (the company that acquired Monsanto) dropped the most market value in its history, losing about $8.3 billion USD, after losing billions in court. Three years after Bayer agreed to pay a record-breaking $10 billion to settle claims that its weedkiller, Roundup, caused cancer, juries continue to award plaintiffs in additional cases. In the past two months, in four separate cases that weren’t covered by the 2020 settlement, juries have awarded more than $2 billion in damages to plaintiffs. There are 47,000 settlements still pending.

Bye-Bye Trudeau!

Fire Trudeau Petition Becomes the Most Signed e-Petition in Canadian History

By Tea Lynn Moore

An e-petition calling for the resignation of Prime Minister Justin Trudeau broke all records on Christmas Eve when it closed with 386,698 signatures (nearly 1% of the entire Canadian population). The petition, calling for a no-confidence vote in the Trudeau government, far surpassed the most signed e-petition in parliamentary history.

The House of Commons petition, e-4701, was penned by Conservative MP Michelle Ferreri. It began on November 24th and closed on Christmas Eve of 2023.

The petition read, “We the citizens of Canada have lost confidence in Justin Trudeau and the Liberal/NDP coalition,” and further demanded a vote of no confidence in the Trudeau minority government.

The Liberal government has 45 calendar days to respond once an e-petition is tabled in the House of Commons. Additionally, if Trudeau was given a no-confidence vote, it would trigger a federal election within 45 days.

The petition further states that government policies fail to align with the crises Canada is facing, including “... housing costs, infringement of civil liberties, highest inflation in history, unbalanced immigration policies, taxation to the point of poverty, weakening of our economy by importing natural resources that Canada already has and under-utilizes...”

Moreover, the petition mentions Trudeau’s five ethics investigations, saying that Canadians have lost faith in his government after these scandals and “Canada’s reputation being tarnished on a global scale.”

The second most successful petition was submitted by the New Democrat Party, which demanded Canada call for a ceasefire in the “Israel-Palestine Conflict.” This petition, now closed, garnered just over 286,000 signatures.

Editorial credit: arindambanerjee / Shutterstock.com

This isn’t the first time the idea of firing Trudeau has gone viral. In 2022, the hashtag #TrudeauMustGo took the #1 trending spot on Twitter in Canada for five days with over one million tweets. In these tweets, Canadians were leaving short blurbs about their lives and calling out Trudeau’s hatefulness towards Canadians. Even Trudeau’s own brother, Kyle Kemper, took part by tweeting: “For 2 decades I’ve been calling BS on the corporatocracy and my brother @JustinTrudeau has become a captive in their scheme. It’s time #TrudeauMustGo and for Canada to become a sovereign nation again.”

Comments Trudeau has made throughout the pandemic to incite division among Canadians include calling unvaxxed protesters a “small fringe minority with unacceptable views” and telling a Quebec television station host that unvaccinated “don’t believe in science and are very often misogynistic and racist.”

Even Liberals’ opinion of Trudeau is tanking. A recent poll by Abacus Data found that 91% of liberal voters find him “inauthentic and phony.”

It’s clear that Canadians are expressing significant dissatisfaction and growing frustration with Prime Minister Justin Trudeau’s leadership. This petition reflects a deep-seated discontent among a notable portion of the Canadian populace, not only with Trudeau’s policies and actions during his tenure but also with his approach to governance and public discourse. The surge in signatures and the traction of social media movements like #TrudeauMustGo indicate a strong desire for change and accountability in Canadian politics.

The government’s response to this petition and Trudeau’s reaction to the criticisms and calls for his resignation will be crucial in the coming days. It will determine the immediate political future of Canada and set a precedent for how democratic processes and public opinion are respected and addressed in Canadian politics. Whether this leads to significant policy changes, a shift in the political landscape, or even a potential federal election, remains to be seen. However, one thing is certain: the voice of nearly 1% of the Canadian population cannot be ignored and signals a critical moment in Canada’s political narrative.

Fighting Tyranny and Claiming Joy

By T. Thorn Coyle

Hello friends,
What a tough time here on this planet. Our interconnection, which is such a source of comfort, sometimes becomes a source of pain. We have empathy for each other, which is good. But that doesn’t make it easy.

As a creative person, I’m always looking for ways to connect with others through art, words, photography, music... As James Baldwin tells us, reading books reminds us that we are not alone. As isolated as we sometimes feel, someone, somewhere, is having a similar experience. Why is that?

We are human.
I wrote an essay for my Patreon friends last month, then forgot to post it in public. While reaching for what to say in the midst of our ongoing, stacking crises, I realized I’d already written a lot of my thoughts and feelings out. So I added an introduction and posted it on my blog today.

My words are not enough, but they aren’t meant to be. They’re one drop in the ocean in which we humans swim. And I’m glad to be swimming alongside you.

Flinging Joy in the Face of Oppression
Here are some excerpts pulled from the essay:
Tyranny is challenged with every kind word. Every refusal to back down. Every racist, sexist, queerphobic, or anti-trans statement challenged.

Tyranny is opposed with every garden planted and every resource shared. Tyranny is challenged with every anti-fascist sticker slapped on the back of a street sign. Tyranny is challenged when we remember we can take care of each other...

Words challenge tyranny. Actions challenge tyranny. Emotions challenge tyranny. Art, music, and theater challenge tyranny. The stories we tell can either support or tear down tyranny.

We challenge tyranny when we allow ourselves to rest. We challenge tyranny when we revel in pleasure.

We challenge tyranny when we insist on being alive, as we are.

Love and defiance challenge tyranny.

We challenge tyranny when we examine our assumptions. We challenge tyranny when we refuse to call the cops on noisy neighbors. We challenge tyranny with every block party thrown, every clean up organized, every fascist faced down in the bar or on the street.

We challenge tyranny with every union organized and every worker collective founded...

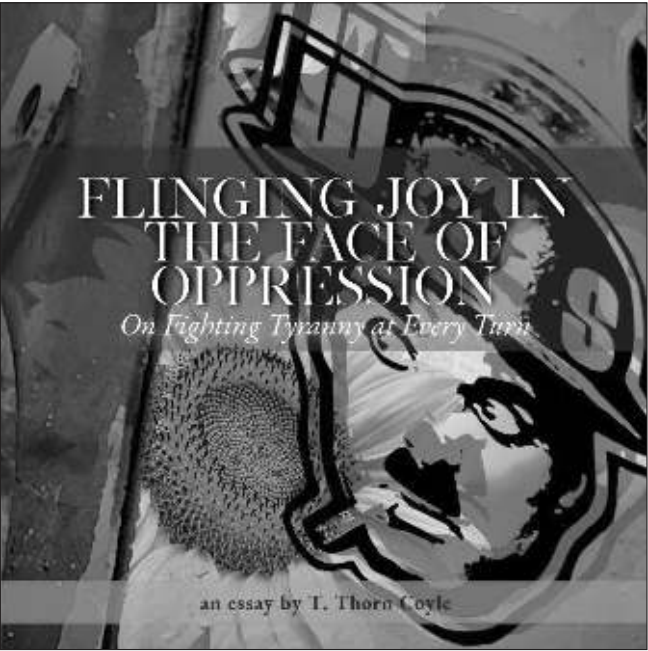

To fight tyranny is to say, “We are here, and we shall not comply with orders or actions that diminish us.”

Canada Limiting Oil and Gas Industry Emission

By Martin Armstrong

Canada has announced a plan to use a cap-and-trade system to impose greenhouse gas emission limits on its oil and gas industry. Under the “draft framework,” Canada will issue emissions allowances to oil and gas producers, which will be capped at levels between 35% and 38% below 2019 levels, beginning in 2030. The government will then continue to lower allowances in stages until the industry reaches net zero by 2050.

Ottawa plans to finish drafting regulations by next year, with a final plan in place by 2026. Environment Minister Steven Guilbeault called the plan “ambitious” but “practical.” “It considers the global demand for oil and gas, and the importance of the sector in Canada’s economy, and sets a limit that is strict, but achievable,” Guilbeault said. This is all part of Prime Minister Justin Trudeau’s plan for Canada to achieve net-zero emissions by 2050, which he announced during his election in 2021.

Critics state that the timeframe is simply not achievable for the world’s fourth-largest oil producer and fifth-largest natural gas producer. Federal Energy Minister Jonathan Wilkinson admitted that the government is uncertain how they will implement these measures without shutting down production entirely. A failed execution “would essentially make us poorer in Canada and make our American friends or folks in Saudi Arabia or elsewhere richer,” he stated.

Globalists everywhere are making lofty pledges on the heels of the COP28 summit. The only rush comes when attempting to meet these arbitrary targets. The only reason governments are targeting 2030 and 2050 is because they were directed to do so by Klaus Schwab and the globalists at the World Economic Forum. It will be interesting to see the final plans for this idea that sacrifices Canada’s economic health for the climate change psyops.

The Future of Medicine

By Alan Brough

The Decline of Empathy and the Rise of AI

When asked, most patients say that what makes a good doctor is their empathy. But we are not seeing it nowadays. Fifty-six percent of doctors said they simply don't have the time to be empathetic or compassionate.

Yet this has a material impact on the quality of care they provide. In an extensive 2019 study, Trzeciak and Mazzarelli found that when doctors take the time to make human connections, patient outcomes improve and medical costs decrease.

Unfortunately, improving patient outcomes and reducing costs are not a priority of the allopathic (or "Rockefeller") medical system that we currently have, which is more of a "sick care" system that treats symptoms of the disease and tries to make those symptoms disappear. Inevitably, patients are not cured, and over time, they actually become sicker, returning more often to the clinic. The system is designed this way to make them "clients for life," thereby leveraging the maximum profit potential from each patient. Curing illness is counter-productive to this business model.

Doctors swamped by work pressure realize their patients are not cured, so their willingness to emotionally connect with their patients has waned. This situation opened the door to telemedicine, which became very popular during the COVID years when face-to-face, in-person consultations were highly discouraged. Telemedicine has further distanced patients from their doctors.

In a study done in April 2023 that compared responses from physicians and AI chatbots to patient questions posted to a public social media forum, a panel of licensed healthcare professionals preferred ChatGPT response seventy-nine percent of the time. The AI responses were rated as higher quality and more empathetic, which should be a massive wake-up call for doctors who, by all accounts, are already on the edge of obsolescence.

As Dr. Malthouse pointed out to his European audience, many doctors will not recover from this slippery slope. It starts with people being unable to access timely care, which forces them to use ChatGPT or other medical AIs. If the answers they get are accurate and empathetic, they will use the more convenient AI service again. Over time, they will not care if it's advice from a computer or a human and may start to trust AI more than the "old school" human doctor. Once this process begins, humans will play an ever-decreasing role in providing healthcare.

Dr. Malthouse cautioned that, to survive, doctors need to find and develop the human qualities that add a non-mechanical element to care, such as empathy and respect. Otherwise, AI will fill the gap, as it has already started to do.

The Impact of the Flexner Report and the Establishment of "Rockefeller" Medicine

Dr. Malthouse then explained how Rockefeller captured the medical industry via the Flexner Report in 1910, which enabled him to discredit and squeeze out any health practitioners deemed "irregular," targeting homeopathy, naturopathy, chiropractic, osteopathic, and eclectic medicine. Before the Flexner hit job, these health practitioners were well-established, well-respected, and credited with curing their patients, just as medicine should.

Under the influence of Rockefeller and his grant money, the American Medical Association ruled that "regular" doctors couldn't even speak to homeopaths. This carefully planned campaign to discredit the "irregular" medical practitioners in the eyes of the public had several negative and fully intended impacts, which included a decrease in the number of female medical graduates and African American medical graduates and the closure of more than half of all the medical schools in America, along with all of the remaining homeopathic hospitals.

In 1986, there was another blow to the health of Americans—the passing of the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act, which protected all the big pharmaceutical companies from any liability for injuries that their vaccines caused. Of course, the number of scheduled vaccines for children soared right after that, which in North America is now about 72 vaccines before age 18.

By the end of 2020, this complete embracement of of ALL complementary and alternative medicines is seeing the same rapid rise. In 2022, the market was worth $99 billion; in 2023, $123 billion; with estimates for 2026, $235 billion; in 2029, $456 billion; and by 2032, it is estimated to be worth a whopping $890 billion!!

(precedenceresearch.com)

This huge trend across North America reflects ordinary people realizing the failings of the allopathic system and turning, in ever greater numbers, to more effective alternative modalities that are more curative and less symptom-orientated.

Back To The Future

Dr. Malthouse concluded his presentation with his list of predictions for the future and what he recommends we should aim for. They included:

- THE LOSS OF HUMAN DOCTORS: The biggest threat to conventional doctors is that we will not need them anymore because artificial intelligence will likely replace them. Doctors are now just following an algorithm, a guideline that tells them what to do, and they've lost the humanness of being a doctor. They don't have the time for empathy, trapped in the paradigm of treating the symptoms with conventional drugs, which only make the person sicker and never cure them.

- INTEGRATION: We need a much more integrated approach to healthcare, and it should not just be exclusively the allopathic model for everything. There is a place for allopathy, especially in terms of emergency care and stabilizing patients after trauma, such as car accidents and broken bones. But when it comes to chronic diseases such as what we see every day in our clinics, accounting for eight percent of health conditions, an integrative approach utilizing the curative benefits of homeopathy, naturopathy, nutrition, and chiropractic would be much more effective.

- INFRASTRUCTURE: In Canada, particularly, we will change our infrastructure. Canada's socialized medical system is failing, being expensive and very top-heavy, which makes it inefficient. We must regain control of our institutions, such as our hospitals and community hospitals. We need to decentralize. When we give power to a few people, it inevitably corrupts them. We must decentralize the infrastructure and let communities take back control of institutions, including the finances.

- MORE PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY FOR HEALTH: People must take back personal responsibility for their health and treat themselves preventatively. And they have to take back sovereignty and realize their informed consent is essential.

- PHARMACEUTICAL COMPANIES MUST HAVE LIABILITY AGAIN: If we made them liable, you can be sure they would be gone overnight! And that would lead to the disappearance of vaccines and most conventional drugs from the market. Based on Dr. Paul Thomas's research, if we stopped childhood vaccines, we would immediately see an improvement in overall health by as much as fifty percent, and improving health would again become the priority.

- THE BIG PARADIGM SHIFT: We must stop treating symptoms and return to helping people treat and heal themselves by moving towards energy medicine and properly integrating "old-fashioned" therapies.

We need:

- The removal of suppressive drugs and treatments that make people worse in the long term
- Stabilizing therapies used only temporarily and palliatively
- Curative treatments in harmony with the body, mind, and spirit

- A RETURN OF HUMANITY: Search for what makes us human and strengthen and hone those skills
- A RETURN OF ETHICS: We need ethics in medicine again because we have seen that morality has left medicine and there needs to be an awakening of conscience and the reestablishment of empathy and true care

Dr. Malthouse concluded his 25-minute presentation by saying that we need to ground the future of medicine at the confluence of consciousness, conscience, and will. "At that point, we will find out what a human really is so that Artificial Intelligence cannot challenge us. Real humans will be able to transcend that, and it will revolutionize medicine. I believe this is where we are going."

You can watch Dr. Malthouse's full talk on Day 2 at internationalcovidsummit.com, the third presentation. See also canadahealthalliance.org

"Rockefeller" or Allopathic medicine controls education to ensure a "modern" paradigm of medicine that treats symptoms. And we are awash with pharmaceutical drugs and more vaccines than we know what to do with—great for Big Business, Big Pharma, and Big Marketing.

And then along came the COVID-19 vaccines, which ramped everything up even further. We had to contend with having an untested and dangerous vaccine forced upon every one of us. The medical colleges and associations with almost every educational institute and media channel further consolidated Big Pharma's grip on centralized healthcare.

And it has been disastrous. According to the American VAERS reporting system, up to the end of October 2023, there have been 36,501 reported deaths due to the COVID-19 vaccine, 211,257 hospitalizations, 152,852 cases of urgent care, and 68,416 people now suffering from permanent disabilities. While these figures are shocking, it is also widely accepted that VAERS only reports as little as one percent of the actual total! If so, to date, in the United States, there have likely been more than three and a half million deaths from the COVID-19 vaccine alone.

Now The Pendulum Starts to Swing Back Towards "Alternative" Medicine Again...

Although it is hard to find a silver lining, this blatant assault has finally made people realize the failings of formal allopathic healthcare, and they are now beginning to look for alternatives. We see this shift with the establishment of organizations such as Canada Health Alliance, working on establishing a parallel healthcare system, and in the "Reform Pharma" initiative recently launched by the Children's Health Defence.

There is also a population-wide move back to the old "irregular" modalities of homeopathy, naturopathy, nutritional therapy, chiropractic, and the many other alternative modalities that have all been suppressed since the Flexner Report.

In a recent survey, eighty-six percent of Canadians think homeopathy should be offered as much, or more often, by their healthcare professional. At the same time, more than one in four Canadians used homeopathy in the last twelve months.

This change is also happening across the United States, so we anticipate massive growth in the North American homeopathy market, which started in 2020 when the market size doubled when people began seeing homeopaths to treat COVID-19. At the time, the "regular" medical profession only offered dread and fear, which established a habit so that in 2022, the market size of the industry was worth $750 million. In 2023, it is estimated to be $850 million, and by 2032, it is estimated that it will be worth $2.34 billion.

According to Precedence Research, the market size

The Real State of Law Under the Federal Corporation CANADA

By Djohn Lawrence

I am writing this article in the spirit of Druthers [“If I had my druthers, we would all know the truth”].

I’ve been a reader, distributor, and supporter of Druthers, in my community, from its beginning. This article is my attempt to share and provide some additional insights into the October article “The State of the Law in Canada” by Ted Kuntz of Vaccine Choice Canada.

I know and very much appreciate Ted’s work and his integrity. His article inspired me to write to clarify and add insights to points he wrote about. I will hopefully provide a little more in-depth summary of my comprehension of the law that I/we Canadians live with every day. All aspects of the legal system are not what we are supposed to believe they are at any level of the Corporation CANADA’s Government(s).

My first factual concern is that we, the Canadian people, have not been educated or taught the basics of Financial Literacy when it comes to seeking legal help, assistance, and guidance.

I learned more about this deficit in May 2010 when I presented a paper to the Federal Task Force on Financial Literacy at a Public Hearing in Ottawa. My conclusion after that experience was that the Financial Literacy Task Force was established to assure the private owners and controllers of CANADA’s legal and financial systems that Canadians were successfully kept in the dark, dumbed down to the point that they accepted, virtually without question, that what they were told was what they needed to know to be a success under these systems.

I have learned from personal experience that this is simply very true. The personal trauma and the cost to me personally has been very, very expensive, emotionally, physically, financially, and in legal costs and losses.

I have learned over the past 35 years that I, as a Canadian, am totally and solely responsible for managing, controlling, and conducting my life and my financial and legal affairs. My education began in 1988 while on a highly classified special assignment at the most Senior Management levels of the Federal Corporation CANADA’s Government, under which I believed I was serving my fellow Canadians.

I learned four years after I retired that this was not the case and that the Federal Corporation CANADA does not and was never intended to serve the Canadian people!

Why is this a fact? We Canadians are programmed to believe that we are under common law, which has never been the case under the Corporation CANADA’s “at law” legal system of “Bills, Acts, Statutes, Regulations, and Corporate Policies” [or mandates, as we’ve all learned over the past few years during the “International, worldwide Plandemic,” depopulation, and crimes against humanity on a scale not experienced before in the last several centuries except in China, under Communist rule].

It is not easy or simple to know or comprehend and is very hard to mentally accept, given our lack of Financial Literacy as Canadians. This is not accidental! The private owners of the World’s Monetary, Legal, and Corporate Governments consider humanity a disposable, renewable resource and a commodity to be disposed of for their pleasure and profit!

The Canadian people are not a part of, or included, “under their law” unless you knowingly, unknowingly, or tacitly can be presumed, assumed, deemed, coerced, or intimidated into giving the legal system jurisdiction over your use of the Corporate Government(s) “legal person” that we all unconsciously use as our own NAME in Commerce every day of our adult life. There are not many Canadians who know this (in the legal, financial, or Government[s] professions, and forget about ordinary Canadians) or who can express what their relationship in Commerce is, with the legal person NAME that controls their lives, financially and legally!

Sadly, most Canadians unknowingly criminalize themselves, and live “under” the Statute laws of the privately owned and controlled foreign US/DC Registered, Federal Corporation, CANADA, and its Government(s), at all levels of government. WE are not aware, taught, or educated to use CANADA’s “Commercial Criminal Code lawfully and legally. We enter into “contracts” constantly, unconsciously, and unknowingly to our detriment daily. In doing so, we unknowingly and voluntarily give up our common law “unalienable rights,” and live with and under the “benefits and privileges” of legal systems’ games, provided that we as individuals, conform to and function under the Corporation CANADA’s legislated Statutes, Codes, Bylaws, Regulations, and Policies, all in compliance with the Uniform Commercial Code, the worldwide International rules for contracts, under Corporations: Admiralty (Military) Maritime Merchant Law.

“ Law of the Land ” [Common Law]	“ Law of the Sea ” [Merchant Law]
[Constitutional Government serves Canadians ]	[Unlawful, illegal, corrupt CORPORATE Government rules by contracts ]
Law of the Land, common sense	ADMIRALTY = Law of the Sea/Commercee
Public Policy by Common Law Rights	PUBLIC POLICY – BY STATUTE – PRIVILEGE
Jurisdiction – Land – People	JURISDICTION – SEA – CITIZENS
People – flesh &amp; blood, sentient souls	CITIZENS are LEGAL FICTIONS
People are protected by a Bill of Rights	CITIZENS, 1982 Corp. Constitution/Charter
Written: Proper Nouns, Names, &amp; Places	ALL CAPITALS CORPORATIONS
You – People (plural); a people (singular)	YOU – PERSON – LEGAL FICTION
You &amp; I live in our physical body	YOU &amp; I are RESIDENT in CANADA
Canada – a Federation of all the people	CANADA, CORPORATE “Person” by contract
Courts of Law – Trials by Jury of Peers	COURTS – COMMERCIAL by JUDGE
Judges serve as arbitrators for the people	JUDGES ADMINISTRATORS in Commerce
Peace Officers – Take oath to the people	POLICE OFFICERS – Policy Enforcement
Vote – Recorded by Referendum	VOTE by REGISTRATION with the CORP.
Referendum – rule by people for people	REGISTRATION of CROWN PROPERTY
Ownership – Is by the people of Canada	OWNERSHIP – by the private GLOBAL ELITE
The people Are Creditors and Owners	CITIZENS are DEBTORS/CORPORATE ASSETS

If the average Canadian had the knowledge and comprehension that I’ve learned studying Commerce law, virtually daily for 35 years, there would be a revolution worse than France’s French Revolution of over two centuries ago!

Back to Ted’s article: The State of Law in Canada

To open his article, Ted states that we are “living in a time of lawlessness.” This is a fact, and has always been a fact, “in law” and “at law” for an individual Canadian. Most Canadians, as individuals, are programmed to accept the “legal person” Status and Standing (Jurisdiction) as the way life is! I no longer do that! ...and have not done so for some time.

From my 35 years of study, I’ve learned the hard way that:

There are no “Our” Courts or “Our” Judges under the corporation CANADA, its Courts, legal systems’ laws/ Corporate Regulations, Policies and Bylaws.

Jurisdiction determines if a Case is heard in a Court, and few people comprehend or can control it. Remember Courts deal with their always “in custody,” legal person (the paper on the “monetized” Court docket and not a flesh and blood, living man or woman or people!)

The legal system is a costly (emotionally, physically, and financially) complex procedural “legal paper” system that is designed to create cash flow for the system from their “surety” (You & I) when we are a DEFENDANT, RESPONDENT, or CLAIMANT, even if you are skilled and capable of “self-representation.”

When you hire a lawyer under their contract, verbally or in writing, costs escalate and the time spent in Courts expands, often for months or years, and the “legal person,” in custody of the Court, is always “guilty until proven innocent,” under Corporate CANADA’s legal system.

I’ve learned that I cannot change the system, but I’ve learned I can use it without harming myself, my lifestyle, or others. After all, the legal system that we are supposed to believe is law for the Canadian people is a “paper illusion.”

It takes time, learning, and sometimes making expensive mistakes (as I’ve learned) to control my relationship with the Corporation CANADA’s Commerce contracts, their policy authorities, and their legal system.

Flying, sharing, and accepting the flag of CANADA give the Government’s Policy Authorities immediate “Jurisdiction” in any circumstance that you may believe you can or should challenge... it’s “guilty until you prove yourself innocent”!!!

Most of my concerns have always been true for the “Canadian people” since “the idea” of Canada was conceived around 1866 and the BNA Act of 1867 was passed as British law under the CROWN to create the Colony Canada, under which Canadians were British “Subjects.”

The legal definition of a “subject” is “property,” meaning, a Canadian was a British slave during Canada’s existence as a Colony until December 11, 1931. On that date, with the passage and acceptance of The Statute of Westminster, Canada’s Status became the Corporation CANADA. The land known as Canada, the British Colony, and its Canadian people were no longer “British subjects” or property of the British Commonwealth Government under the CROWN. After the passage and acceptance of the SWM Act by CANADA’s Parliament, the form of Government we face daily began, the hidden changes, that I’ve summarized below:

Canada [the idea] changed virtually unnoticed to the Corporation CANADA

Democracy[sowearetold] vs STATUTE CORPORATE GOVERNMENT(s) [Servitude/Slavery – for Canadians]

Statute legislated Corporate Government for Canadians creates an illusion of freedom “at law” [under Admiralty Maritime Merchant Law, which is Military Law]. “The Rule of Law,” of and for the Federal Corporation CANADA, is an International legal Jurisdiction for which there are the Corporate Commercial rules for the Corporations contract laws, not Common Law, as Canada’s legal system “in law” [Common Law] was meant to be for the Canadian people. The Corporate CANADA [called The Government of Canada] creates the illusion of ownership and freedom for the legal PERSON, but rules by fraud, deception, intimidation, fear, coercion, secrecy, unlawful contracts, and tacit acceptance because the people do not know they have been programmed, deceived, and undermined by a corrupt, privately-owned Corporate Political Party system. Because the system is privately owned and controlled by private owners, the 1% (the Financial Elite), these owners and controllers of the monetary and legal systems operate freely by their own rules, unaccountable to the Canadian people of the land we know and love as Canada. The Canadian people do not exist as people under the Corporation CANADA’s legal system, or Government(s), and any level of the system, which has not changed in centuries.

“CORPORATE” is never used to describe the Federal Government of CANADA.

Given that is what we are functioning with in our daily lives, it is time to educate every Canadian so that we operate the Federal CANADA system of Government(s) lawfully.

Given that we have been accepting and would appear to accept and function with this INTERNATIONAL CORPORATE SYSTEM of Government(s), it is time for just and honourable “Rule of Law.” That at present is not the case, nor has it ever been so for Canadians.

In CANADA’s International CORPORATE Jurisdictions [FEDERAL and PROVINCIAL] “at law” under the UCC [Uniform Commercial Code] of the UNITED CORPORATIONS (deceptively and fraudulently called the UNITED NATIONS), fraud, deception, intimidation, fear, coercion, secrecy, unlawful contracts and tacit acceptance is the norm in Commerce, Government, and the Courts as accepted normal policy and procedure.

It is time that the system functions and operates lawfully, openly and in honour at all levels of the system. People need to be recognized “in law.” Corporations need to be lawfully accountable to and serve the Canadian people. We Canadians are not property of Corporate Government(s).

In closing, every Canadian needs to know and remember that “freedom is not free.” Freedom means you take full responsibility for yourself, your life, your family, and the role in life you choose to live for as long as you exist in physical form. Freedom means there is no retirement. You & I cannot withdraw from life!

How do we begin to make “the ‘idea’ of Canada” our Canadian reality?

Education, and learning does not end – ever!

Change the definition of the word “person” to mean only a man, woman, or “people,” and not a “Corporation” in the Statutes legal system.

Take back the Ownership of the BANK OF CANADA and manage the monetary system for the Canadian people.

Make Corporations “serve” and provide Services for the people “in law” (Common law), and “at law” (Merchant/contract law). Teach, educate, and remember,

Had You Known, Would You Have Taken the Jab?

By Brownstone Institute

Would 92% of American adults have gotten a Covid shot had they known the “vaccines” only offered a 0.85% reduction in risk? Would young men have taken the jab if they had known it did not prevent transmission?

Americans came to understand that the media campaigns supporting the shots were fraudulent. The touted benefits – preventing infection and transmission – were lies. In response, fewer than one in five Americans elected to receive “boosters” despite multi-billion dollar propaganda campaigns.

Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton has now brought a suit to bring accountability for the fraud that resulted in record profits for the pharmaceutical industry.

Last week, he filed a complaint alleging that Pfizer misrepresented Covid vaccine efficacy and “conspired to censor public discourse” in violation of Texas’s Deceptive Trade Practices Act (DTPA).

While Big Pharma enjoys immense government-provided insulation from legal liability for vaccine injuries, it cannot lie to promote those products.

Paxton alleges that the $75 billion Pfizer has raked in through sales of Covid vaccines were the “direct and proximate result” of the company’s deceit.

The DTPA requires Paxton prove two questions to succeed in his case. First, he must establish that the company lied or failed to disclose known information concerning its Covid vaccine. Second, he must prove that the company’s fraud was designed to promote sales of the shots.

Brownstone previously analyzed the applicability of the DTPA against Moderna. Now, Paxton’s lawsuit threatens Pfizer with fines of $10 million as well as awards of “restitution, damages, or civil penalties.”

Paxton’s case argues that Pfizer deceived the public on three issues: (1) the efficacy of the vaccine; (2) whether the shots reduced the risk of transmission; and (3) the company’s efforts to “censor[] persons who threatened to disseminate the truth.”

In each instance, the company skewed the public debate in order to induce Americans to take its shots. The efforts stripped us of the right to informed consent, deceiving us on purported benefits while hiding established risks.

Efficacy

First, Paxton targets the now-familiar falsehoods that the company, led by CEO Albert Bourla, touted, including that the shots had “95% efficacy” and worked against mutations of the virus.

Paxton’s critiques do not require the benefit of hindsight. Pfizer’s own data showed that the vaccine was merely 0.85% effective in reducing the likelihood that an individual would contract Covid (known as absolute risk reduction). Put differently, Pfizer’s clinical data showed that “preventing one Covid-19 case required vaccinating 119.”

Despite this unconvincing data, Bourla claimed there was “initial evidence of our vaccine’s ability to prevent Covid-19.” Bourla later said that the shots had “100%” efficacy rates against mutations of the virus, including the Delta variant. Not only was this a lie, Pfizer never tested the shots against the variants. Still, in May 2021 he baselessly claimed that “no variant identified so far... escapes the protection of our vaccine.”

Three months later, the company issued a press release saying that boosters would “preserve and even exceed the high levels of protection against...relevant variants.” Shortly thereafter, the United States exercised its option to purchase 500 million more doses of Pfizer’s Covid vaccines.

These lies clearly and directly induced Americans to take products with illusory benefits. The claims were fabricated, and they led to billions of dollars in windfalls for Bourla and Pfizer.

Transmission

Pfizer’s marketing relied on convincing healthy young adults and teenagers to get shots despite the negligible risk that Covid posed to them. Bourla used transmission to launch a moral blackmail campaign. He told teenagers that they should get the shots to “protect...their loved ones.” He later tweeted, “widespread vaccination is a critical tool to help stop transmission.”

Under oath, company officials later admitted that they had never tested whether the vaccines reduced transmission.

In October 2022, Pfizer spokeswoman Janine Small appeared at a European Parliament hearing. “Was the Pfizer Covid vaccine tested on stopping transmission of the virus before it entered the market?” asked Dutch MEP Rob Roos. “No!” Small responded emphatically. “We had to really move at the speed of science to really understand what is taking place in the market; and from that point of view, we had to do everything at risk.”

Under the DTPA, Paxton must prove that the company misrepresented information regarding the vaccine in an effort to promote sales of its products. With the vast majority of Americans under 70 facing zero substantial risk from Covid infection, the lies regarding transmission were critical to expand the customer base.

This deception underpinned the mandates in 2021 as government and corporate officials insisted that vaccination was necessary to keep healthy adults’ coworkers and neighbors safe. By December 2021, Pfizer’s stock price had doubled from the onset of the pandemic in February 2020.

hurtling down the slippery slope as Nazi Germany did in the 1930s [that started with the sanctioned mercy killing of a loving father’s severely handicapped daughter]. We’re falling off the cliff. We know the Trudeau Liberal regime is committed to normalizing euthanasia-on-demand and expanding access to those with mental disorders. We must hold firm in faith and prayer and commit to action by reaching out to local MPs to reverse course on this reckless expansion of euthanasia in Canada.”

How does our consideration of MAiD meet the sacred value of life? What is the purpose of life (not to suffer?), how do we determine the best timing for death, and, if we cannot, who decides?

On February 15, 2023, the Special Joint Committee on Medical Assistance in Dying (AMAD) reported on five mandated issues: advance requests, access to MAiD for mature minors, access to MAiD for those whose sole underlying medical condition is a mental disorder (MAiD MD-SUMC), the state of palliative care, and the protection of people living with disabilities. In November 2023, the Committee completed its review of Canada’s readiness to implement MAiD MD-SUMC and will deliver its report in January 2024. Then the government responds. Contents and recommendations are embargoed until then.

Censorship

As Pfizer committed to deceiving the public, it had to ensure that journalists would not uncover its corporate misdeeds. Paxton’s suit outlines how the company “sought to intimidate and silence...journalist Alex Berenson.”

As Berenson reported on the efficacy, or lack thereof, of mRNA “vaccines,” Pfizer Board Member Dr. Scott Gottlieb colluded with Twitter to silence his reporting. In August 2021, Berenson tweeted that Pfizer’s vaccine “doesn’t stop infection...[o]r transmission,” and had a “limited window of efficacy.” Despite the veracity of these statements, Gottlieb wrote to Twitter officials encouraging them to ban Berenson’s heresy.

Hours later, Berenson received a permanent ban (he was later reinstated following a lawsuit). Now, Pfizer CEO Albert Bourla is a defendant in Berenson’s case against the Biden Administration, which accuses White House officials of colluding with private actors in Big Tech and Big Pharma to usurp Berenson’s First Amendment rights.

Paxton’s case also outlines how Pfizer worked to silence scientists who discussed the benefits of natural immunity, calling the rhetoric “corrosive” to the public’s confidence in their products. The aim was simple: shield Americans from the truth so that they would continue to get the product.

A Rare Opportunity to Strike Back

To this point, “victories” against the hegemon that emerged in 2020 have been defensive in nature. Groups have fended off vaccine mandates, states have resisted calls for renewed lockdowns, and journalists have begun to expose the corruption that shattered Western civilization.

These efforts, though important, have failed to bring accountability against those who usurped our civil liberties and pillaged the national treasury. Paxton’s suit strikes at the heart of the corruption behind the Covid regime: how their success required mass deception and their profits depended on lies.

Though $10 million in fines is little compared to the $75 billion in revenue that Pfizer raked in from vaccines alone, the suit signifies that the resistance is at last on the offensive.

Big Pharma sees this is a grave threat, and its lobbying forces led a failed impeachment effort against Paxton this fall. They threw him out of his office, and disabled his ability to do his job that the voters sent him to do. Turning up nothing, the legislature rejected the entire drama. Now he is back and working and this is the result: accountability at last.

The steep drop in demand for Covid shots reveals how Pfizer depended upon fraud to promote their most lucrative product. Once Americans knew the truth, demand dropped by over 75%.

Now, Paxton’s suit brings that fraud to trial.

Texas Attorney General Sues Pfizer for Misrepresenting COVID-19 Vaccine Efficacy

Conspiring to Censor Public Discourse

By Jo

On November 30, 2023, Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton published a press release stating Texas has sued Pfizer, Inc., for unlawfully misrepresenting the effectiveness of the company’s COVID-19 vaccine and attempting to censor public discussion of the product.

Pfizer engaged in false, deceptive, and misleading acts and practices by making unsupported claims regarding the company’s COVID-19 vaccine, violating the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act.

texasattorneygeneral.gov/news/releases/attorney-general-ken-paxton-sues-pfizer-misrepresenting-covid-19-vaccine-efficacy-and-conspiring

NOTE: This is no coincidence!

May 1, 2023 – Attorney General Paxton launched an investigation into the pharmaceutical companies Pfizer, Moderna, and Johnson & Johnson concerning whether they engaged in gain-of-function research and misled the public about doing so.

May 25, 2023 – The Texas House filed articles of impeachment against Paxton.

September 16, 2023 – Paxton acquitted of 16 charges. Also, he beat George P. Bush in 2022, son of Jeb Bush, for the AG (Attorney General) seat. We also know that many politicians get campaign funds from the pharmaceutical industry, just like the media, which presents a significant conflict of interest.

Karen Kingston, a medical-legal advisor and biotech analyst with 25 years of experience, breaks down the Paxton lawsuit:

karenkingston.substack.com/p/did-hear-that-texas-is-suing-pfizer

Texas is suing Pfizer for 18 violations across five counts of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act. Texas is petitioning for a restraining order against Pfizer and billions of dollars.

Kingston has the expertise and evidence required to provide citizens with the evidence and words to understand and articulate the COVID-19 crimes committed against them under the guise of public health safety and national security. Unlike other legal and medical experts, Kingston understands the EUA and “vaccine” med-legal landscape, its loopholes, and where Pfizer forfeited their alleged iron-clad immunity so that the big pharma giant can be criminally prosecuted and convicted.

Pfizer’s claim

“We (Pfizer & BioNTech) believe that today’s Emergency Use Authorization and the subsequent distribution of our vaccine that has demonstrated an efficacy rate of 95% and a favorable safety profile will help to save lives across the United States and could accelerate a return to normality.”

– December 11, 2020, Pfizer Press Release

The Problem:

Absolute Risk – is the likelihood of an event occurring under specific conditions. Absolute risk numbers are needed to understand Relative Risks.

Relative Risk – is the likelihood of an event occurring in a group of people compared to another group with different behaviors, physical conditions, or environments. Relative risks alone do not tell the whole story.

It’s Called Science. TRUST IT.

So how did Pfizer convert a less than 1% reduction in risk for COVID-19 to a 95% efficacy claim? It’s called “Vaccine Efficacy” math, “cherry-picking data,” or “SCIENCE.” I’d explain it to you, but according to Pfizer, if you’re not a scientist, “You wouldn’t understand it. So, just Trust the Science.”

Pfizer Gross Profits (with liability protection except for “willful misconduct”)

macrotrends.net/stocks/charts/PFE/pfizer/gross-profit

Pfizer’s annual/quarterly gross profit history and growth rate from 2010 to 2023. Gross profit can be defined as a company’s profit after deducting the variable costs directly associated with making and selling its products or providing its services.

Pfizer’s gross profit for the quarter ending September

30, 2023, was $3.963B, a 76.09% decline year-over-year

Pfizer’s gross profit for the twelve months ending September 30, 2023, was $41.496B, a 36.6% decline year-over-year

Pfizer’s annual gross profit for 2022 was $65.986B, a 30.75% increase from 2021

Pfizer’s annual gross profit for 2021 was $50.467B, a 52.16% increase from 2020

Pfizer’s annual gross profit for 2020 was $33.167B, a 0.96% increase from 2019

“Willful Misconduct,” the exception to liability protection

Congressional Record Service Report “COVID-19 and Liability Limitations for the Health Care Section” (July 1, 2020) states the following:

“Each of these liability limitations has, at minimum, a ‘willful misconduct’ exception that generally excludes from immunity conduct performed in knowing disregard of the safety of others. In the case of the PREP Act, the exception applies only if the willful misconduct causes death or serious physical injury.”

Censorship

On November 9, 2021, Pfizer CEO Albert Bourla testified in Congress that “People who spread misinformation on COVID-19 vaccines are criminals and have cost millions of lives.”

cnbc.com/2021/11/09/covid-vaccines-pfizer-ceo-says-people-who-spread-misinformation-on-shots-are-criminals.html

Page 41:

F. Pfizer Intimidated and Silenced Persons Who Spread Information About the Vaccine that Undermined Its False Efficacy Narrative.

125. Pfizer also took overt action to intimidate and silence persons who spread factual information about vaccine efficacy. On information and belief, Pfizer engaged in this misconduct to prolong the effectiveness of the company’s deception campaign, thereby maintaining the false impression that its COVID-19 vaccine had more efficacy than in reality. Over the course of 2021, Pfizer’s censorship campaign helped secure commitments to purchase at least 415 million and 2.7 billion doses from the U.S. and foreign governments, respectively, displacing Pfizer’s rivals and achieving the status of first-choice vaccine.

Page 45:

135. On information and belief, Pfizer employed multiple other methods, directly or indirectly, with the intent to provoke and ultimately cause censorship on social media platforms of content adverse to sales or consumption of its vaccine.

Critical-thinking adults always question everything.

They don’t follow the herd. When the powers-that-be engage in censorship of free speech and discussion, that’s a sure sign that it should be questioned. Actual science is constantly questioned, despite the rhetoric you heard throughout the pandemic to “Trust the Science.”

“Why We Cannot Trust the Vaccine Data” (Druthers article May 2021, page 2) druthers.ca/why-we-cannot-trust-the-vaccine-data/

As you see in this article, pharmaceutical companies have been fined on multiple occasions over decades, but their behavior doesn’t change. Why? Fines are only the cost of doing business, and their profits far outweigh the assessed fines.

The other issue is the revolving door from the FDA to big pharma. The FDA is supposed to oversee the pharmaceutical industry, yet most FDA Commissioners get jobs with the pharmaceutical industry after leaving their post as Commissioner.

“Former FDA Commissioner Stephen Hahn joins venture capital group behind Moderna”: foxbusiness.com/politics/former-fda-commissioner-stephen-hahn-joins-venture-capital-group-behind-moderna

Ask yourself, how does a regulator do oversight if they later join the very companies they are supposed to oversee?

Something needs to change, as this isn’t oversight; it looks more like collusion.

Question everything!

Canadian Time Traveler Visits US Congress

Transcript of Rupa Subramanya’s speech to Congress

Thank you, Chairman Jordan. I’m pleased to be able to join you today to testify on the importance of free expression. I’d like all of you to think of me as a time-traveler from the not-too-distant future coming back to the present to offer you a glimpse of what could lie ahead for America.

I live in a time in which, in the name of fairness, you can’t share the stories you write for my news publication on social media. I live in a time in which, in the name of the common good, you can be kicked out of your bank and online payments system—unable to buy even a cup of coffee—for expressing the wrong political views. I live in a time in which, in the name of social justice, you can commit a serious crime but get a more lenient sentence if you happen to be the right skin colour. I live in a time in which, in the name of safety, you can be arrested for exercising your right to peaceful protest if you happen to be protesting the wrong thing.

Of course, I’m not a real time-traveler. I just live in Canada. Americans—and perhaps those in this chamber—surely think Canadians are too nice, too polite, to embrace this sort of proto-authoritarianism. But it’s more accurate to say that our niceness made us susceptible to the new authoritarianism undermining the foundations of our liberal democracy.

If it sounds like I am overstating things, allow me to share three stories that illustrate this creeping authoritarianism.

First story. A few months ago, I reported a story for my publication, The Free Press, about a high school principal in Toronto who had been humiliated in front of his colleagues by a diversity, equity, and inclusivity consultant. The principal’s crime, besides being white and male, was that he objected to the consultant’s assertion that Canada is a less just society than America. The humiliation he experienced ultimately led him to commit suicide. I was proud of the story, so I went to share it on Facebook. When I did, I was barred from posting it. I received a message that stated: “In response to Canadian government legislation, news content can’t be shared.”

I was confused. This was Facebook. The point of it was to share personal and news content. Then I remembered the recently adopted Online News Act, otherwise known as Bill C-18.

The law forces social media companies to pay online media companies to link to their content. Facebook, instead of paying for that content, barred its users from posting it. Government officials insisted this was only a matter of fairness—a way of making sure that media companies are compensated for the news they report. But really, C-18 props up legacy media dinosaurs like the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Bell Media and other companies, all of which are subsidized by the federal government and all of which can be counted on to echo Justin Trudeau’s worldview and toe the party line. Not being able to post was irritating, but it wasn’t the end of the world. I don’t depend on Facebook likes or shares for my income. The same cannot be said of Christopher Curtis.

Which brings me to my second story.

Chris is a 38-year-old renegade journalist-entrepreneur in Montreal who runs a digital newsletter called The Rover. Chris calls himself woke. He likes to brandish his pronouns. Now, you might think that Chris is exactly the kind of journalist the Trudeau government would elevate. He is on the political left. He publishes stories about the plight of the homeless and police brutality. The problem is that, unlike government-funded news companies, independent media companies are truly independent. Which means they report stories that don’t comport with whatever the government wants them to report. For example, in September 2020, The Rover reported a story on federal mistreatment of Mohawk Indians. This month (December 2023), it published another story about migrant workers who had been abused and trafficked—with the unwitting help of the government. But under C-18, The Rover can’t build its audience. Unable to post content on Facebook or Instagram—which is owned by Facebook’s parent company, Meta—the newsletter can’t reach new eyeballs. It can’t grow its subscriber base.

“This is a slow death” as Chris put it. For now, he’s unsure how he’s going to support his partner and their three-year-old daughter. He’s thinking of going back into construction.

Which takes me to my third story.

Danny Bulford, now 41, used to be an officer in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police—the equivalent of the FBI. For years, he was a sniper in the prime minister’s protective detail. Then, in 2021, Danny quit because he didn’t want to get his Covid vaccination. In early 2022, when truckers descended on Ottawa to protest new Covid vaccination requirements, Danny joined them. The government declared a state of emergency. Danny, like many demonstrators, was arrested—and later released without charge. Then, something chilling happened. On February 17, 2022, Danny logged onto his bank accounts—starting with his checking and savings accounts at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. But instead of seeing his balance—he had $160,000 in there—the only thing he saw was a dash. Then, he logged onto Scotia Bank, to see about an additional checking account; once again, there was no sign of any money in his account. Finally, he logged onto Royal Bank of Canada, which handles his Mastercard account, and was told he had no access to any credit. Danny’s wife was also unable to access any of these accounts. Suddenly, they were worrying about how to cover their next mortgage payment and feed their three kids.

That is what it means to be “debanked.” Debanking has been one of the Trudeau government’s weapons of choice. Since 2018, it has frozen the accounts of more than 800 Canadians who did things it didn’t approve of—including those of 280 who took part in the trucker protests, which the government regarded as illegitimate.

Soon after, Danny moved his money out of the big banks and into local credit unions, hoping it would be safer there. “The worst part of this,” Danny told me, “is not believing in the country I spent my career serving. It’s this feeling that we are being watched, torn apart, made to feel like the much hated other in our own country.”

Canada was once a bastion of free expression? Now—not so much. Consider that at the same time the government and its corporate allies are curbing the free expression of truckers and journalists, Trudeau is defending the rights of pro-Palestinian demonstrators—many of whom traffic in what can only be called antisemitism.

Think about that: Vaccine skepticism—not okay. Peddling medieval blood-libel legends about Jews—okay. I’m all for protecting free expression—I’m from The Free Press. I just want that protection applied fairly.

I also want to be clear: These are just a handful of hundreds of stories I could have picked. What is happening in Canada is a gradual suffocation of free expression. It is draped in a cloak of niceness, inclusivity, and justice—but it is regressive, authoritarian, and illiberal.

I came here today not simply to warn you about what lies ahead, but to plead with you to do something about it. Now is not the time to be polite. Now is not the time to defend—loudly—the liberties and rights that have given us the greatest freedoms in human history. Across the world right now, governments, in the name of the good, are considering or adopting measures like we have in Canada. In Dublin, they’re about to enact a draconian hate-crime bill that poses a dire threat to free speech. In Paris, President Emanuel Macron has called for censoring online speech. In Brussels, the EU’s Internal Market Commissioner is calling for a crackdown on “illegal content.” In Brasilia, they’re fighting “fake news” and “disinformation” by clamping down on legitimate online speech. To say nothing of Russia and China and Iran.

America is so exceptional—indispensable, really. Please do not succumb to the same illiberal, the same authoritarianism. Please keep fighting for what you know is right.

Canada is watching.
The whole world is watching.
Thank you.

Media Censorship: Lessons from ABC TV

By Maryanne Demasi

Recently, I presented a talk titled, “Lessons from ABC TV” at a conference hosted by Australians for Science and Freedom on 18 - 19 November, 2023, held at the University of New South Wales, Sydney.

As an organisation, Australians for Science and Freedom stands for: Free Speech, Intellectual and Academic Freedom, Bodily Autonomy (your body, your choice), Equality (equality of opportunity, not equality of outcomes), and Search for truth via open discourse and the scientific method.

My talk provided insight into media censorship and the “tactical playbook” used by industry to squash dissent and silence its critics.

===== TALK BEGINS =====

During the covid pandemic, we heard a lot about the censorship-industrial complex and how government and industry colluded to censor scientists and journalists online.

Today I’m going to talk about my experience as a journalist in mainstream media. You’ll hear about censorship, attacks on dissenting views, and the capitulation to powerful vested interests, which were part of the media landscape long before covid came along. In essence, covid became the great revealer.

For those of you who don’t know, I worked as a TV presenter and producer for Australia’s premier science program Catalyst on ABC TV for over a decade.

ABC TV is a fully taxpayer funded broadcaster - it claims to be frank and fearless in its journalistic pursuit and free from commercial influence - but in this talk, I offer a different perspective.

My case is fairly well-known as it was documented in most of the state and national newspapers. That said, the media coverage of it was very one-sided.

It all began in 2013 - I produced a two-part series on cholesterol and heart disease. The two programs questioned the role of cholesterol as a cause of heart disease and criticised the over-prescription of cholesterol-lowering statin drugs.

It rated highly with audiences over two weeks. It surpassed the ratings for all the programs in that time slot across all TV networks. It reached an audience of 1.5 million each week so, not surprisingly, ABC’s executives were congratulating us on a job well done.

The managing director of the ABC was pleased about the “time-slot crushing ratings performance.” The Head of Factual TV said it was a “much deserved public vote of confidence” in our great journalism, and the Head of TV said that “not only were the numbers outstanding, but more importantly you showed what happens when you land in the national conversation space. It gets people talking and that’s when I reckon we know we’re doing our job.” But the adulation did not last long.

Within days, all three of the major statin manufacturers complained to the network. So did the Heart Foundation, which was criticised in the program for its outdated dietary advice on heart disease, and of course Medicines Australia, the body that represents the Australian pharmaceutical industry.

They said the ideas in the program were “dangerous,” that they were expressed by “fringe experts,” and assured the public that statin drugs were “safe and effective.”

Do those phrases sound familiar? The phrases became a fixture of the pandemic.

One commentator at the ABC went on national radio and claimed that people would die if they watched the program. Australians will recognise this character - Dr. Norman Swan - he rose to prominence during the pandemic, making a raft of erroneous claims and false predictions about covid, ranging from the efficacy of face masks, to vaccine safety, to lockdowns.

The Children of Ontario Need Your Help

By Steve Jovanovic

The children! My heart calls out every day on their behalf. Although I’ve never had the privilege of being a parent, I know that every child matters; they’re our future. I’m concerned about the steady assault on the innocence of children in the school system with SOGI (Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity). Meanwhile, the integrity of the family structure is being attacked by undermining the children’s trust in their parents.

Remember in the spring of 2020, how it all started with mass fear, suspicion, and division? Government, federally, provincially, and locally elected and unelected officials prioritized “being safe.” They went after the seniors and small businesses, and suddenly, you’re deemed non-essential. The mad rush for toilet paper! Can you imagine what will happen when we have the inevitable collapse?

Even when unelected health officials said children were not at risk of Covid, they burdened them with the suggestion that they might kill their grandparents by being near them. Forget hugs! Playgrounds were deemed unsafe and ribboned off. After they rushed the approval for injections of children, soon we saw billboards on local buses announcing it’s normal for children to have strokes and heart attacks. (“Trust the Science”? Blank labels, zero liability, autism.)

And now, almost four years of Covid is apparently not enough. The damage done to the children is unthinkable with the educational labour disruptions, isolation, and attempts at remote learning. Imagine teachers being directed to tell students not to talk to their friends at lunch or recess. I can’t bear to see a child needlessly masked and constantly living in fear. There appears to be a lull, however, it’s not ending anytime soon!

In Ontario schools, the sexualization, indoctrination, and bullying of our children has been going on for years since before the Kathleen Wynne government’s new sex ed curriculum was introduced in 2015. More recently, school board members have been turning off the microphone at board meetings when parents are speaking out with alarm about inappropriate and suggestive content in elementary school library books. Material that would have a caution for adult reading! Parents and grandparents are being shut out from volunteering at their children’s schools where children are celebrated for choosing to identify as one of 27 gender options and encouraged to keep their choice of pronouns secret from their parents. The SOGI agenda (exposingsogi123.com) introduces a whole new element of peer pressure that is more dangerous than experimenting with smoking, drugs, or alcohol. Gender mutilation is non-reversible and results in sterilization and life-time dependency on pharmaceutical drugs. They want every child fully indoctrinated for life so they will fully comply for life.

We had to do something. In the summer of 2023, we created an actionable plan with our grassroots boots-on-the-ground initiative of a physical petition that even some teachers have signed. Everyone over 18 in Ontario can get involved. All we need is a legible name and town of residence.

Our petition has the potential to set an incredible precedent by increasing public awareness and liberating the children. We also want to redirect our tax dollars to support the growing number of private, home, and church learning pods that emerged during school labour disruptions. These pods provide a small group environment for students learning practical skills and basic math, English, and language education through creative activities and time in nature. Many parents are open to alternatives to the education system that is sexualizing, indoctrinating, and bullying their kids. Talk to your neighbours. We are having thousands of conversations about the issues and hear that parents and other adults want to somehow express their concerns for the children’s well-being.

To receive a copy of the petition PDF and updates by email, please write to kickstartcanada1@gmail.com and Rob will send you the details with the postal mailing address in Bobcaygeon to send your signed petitions.

In mid-February 2024, we will hand deliver more than 10,000 signatures to the Legislative Assembly of Ontario at Queens Park in Toronto, so please aim to have the pages of signatures sent to Rob by February 1. Can we count on your involvement in gathering even 10 signatures? The Ontario Conservative Party has previously tabled such a motion. We have the support of several MPPs (Members of Provincial Parliament), and one is ready to bring forth the message of our petition.

I hope that your heart feels the same urgency as mine and that you’ll get involved. What kind of a world would it be if the children didn’t have a future? Today is the line in the sand. Every child deserves a beautiful future.

The Corporate Interests Pushing Mass Immigration

By Riley Donovan

In opinion poll after opinion poll, Canadians say Prime Minister Trudeau’s immigration target of 500,000 permanent residents per year is too high. In a poll released in November by Abacus, a resounding 67% of respondents said the target is too high. Strikingly, a majority of both native-born Canadians (68%) and immigrants themselves (62%) felt this way.

Why is the federal government refusing to budge on an immigration target that is overwhelmingly opposed by the Canadian public? I have been trying to answer this curious question for some time. My research points to the existence of a powerful immigration lobby made up of the same corporate entities which stand to benefit from an expansion in our nation’s population.

In December, Druthers published my article on the Century Initiative, an influential lobby with the stated aim of increasing Canada’s population to 100 million by 2100 through large-scale immigration. This organization is just one piece of a much larger corporate pressure campaign for mass immigration.

We can find out more about this campaign by investigating where the Century Initiative receives its funding. This information can be found in the “Thank you to our supporters” section of their 2022 annual report, where we find a veritable Who’s Who of the key players in the Canadian corporate sector:

Finance

- Bank of Montreal
- Scotiabank
- TD Bank
- Power Corporation of Canada: A management and holding company with a revenue of $69.56 Billion CAD in 2021. It has holdings in insurance, retirement, wealth management and investment management.

Business

- AGT Food and Ingredients: Headquartered in Regina, AGT is one of the largest pulse-processing companies in the world. It was founded in 2001 by Murad Al-Katib, who is a board member of the Century Initiative.

- Business Council of Canada: An advocacy group composed of CEOs of Canada’s leading companies. The President and CEO of the Business Council of Canada is Goldy Hyder, a board member of the Century Initiative.

Individuals and Family Foundations

- Dominic Barton: Co-founder of the Century Initiative with Mark Wiseman, former Global Managing Director of McKinsey
- Willa Black: Vice President, Corporate Affairs for Cisco Canada. Cisco is an American multinational digital communications technology conglomerate based in California. Black is also a board member of the Century Initiative.

- Lynwood Family Foundation: Lynwood’s President is Sarah Milroy, and its secretary and treasurer is Tom Milroy, who is also the Vice Chair and Treasurer of the Century Initiative. Tom Milroy is the President of TOSA Investments Limited, which directly and indirectly provides financing for affordable housing projects.

The corporate sector has a clear vested interest in the astronomic population growth fuelled by Prime Minister Trudeau’s open-door immigration policy. As our population skyrockets by a record-setting 3.2% per year, the pool of consumers, renters and mortgage-holders grows tremendously. The expansion of the labour force through immigration also places a downward pressure on Canadian wages, reducing corporate expenditures on salaries.

The same phenomenon which is enriching the corporate class is contributing to the impoverishment of the vast majority of citizens. As the GDP (total economic activity) expands, GDP per capita (GDP per person) declines. As rent and house prices spike, tent cities sprout along the streets of many communities. Overcrowding in schools, emergency rooms, and public transit is becoming unbearable.

With enough pressure from citizens, this intolerable situation can be corrected. To counter the monied interests profiting from mass immigration, we need to create our own pressure campaign, a mass movement of citizens of all backgrounds who have had enough of the country being sold out for the profit of the few.

First on the agenda will be reminding our Members of Parliament that they serve the Dominion of Canada and her people, not the corporate and banking sectors.

The Fight for Medical Freedom Continues

Protecting Natural Health Products

By Shawn Buckley

For my entire law career, I have been helping natural health companies withstand Health Canada attacks. Early on, I saw a pattern. All my clients had suffered with a serious health condition. They suffered terribly for years, taking all of the approved chemical drugs prescribed by their doctors. They then found a natural solution for their problem and were healed. The experience was so transformative that they felt obligated to help others. They went into business to help others, and then Health Canada attacked them.

Nick was no exception to this pattern. He was suffering terribly with arthritis. Despite taking all of the chemical drugs his doctor prescribed, he was becoming disabled. He was close to the point of having to shut down his business as a sporting goods distributor. A friend told him to try shark cartilage. Nick tried it, but it didn't work. Later, his friend told him to take lots and take it for a longer period. Nick followed this advice and got well. He no longer had to worry about closing his business. He realized he had to share his relief with others. Despite being a sporting goods distributor, Nick was going to sell shark cartilage. So, at first, the only place you could find Bell Shark Cartilage was in sporting goods stores.

I tell this story to drive home the importance of natural remedies. For many of us, they are the only treatments that enable us to be well or to avoid suffering. Unfortunately, Health Canada is moving to take our natural remedies away so that our only options will be chemical drugs.

Health Canada has come out with a plan to regulate natural remedies with the same regulations that apply to chemical over-the-counter drugs. The "reason" or end goal of this plan is to over-regulate natural remedies off the market. And Health Canada will succeed unless we stop them.

The good news is that together, we can stop Health Canada. Restricting our access to natural remedies is an issue the majority of Canadians get excited about. We get excited because we rely on them. Over 70% of Canadians regularly take natural remedies. The last two times Health Canada tried to restrict access to natural remedies we rebelled. In both 1997-98 and 2008, the citizen rebellions were so large that Health Canada had to back down. We need to do even more this time.

Many know me as lead counsel for the National Citizens' Inquiry (NCI). I am also the President of a non-profit called the Natural Health Product Protection Association (NHPPA - nhppa.org). The NHPPA is leading a national campaign to protect our natural remedies. We started our campaign in May after the NCI hearings ended. Since then, we have had some encouraging events. Parliament resumed in September. Within two weeks of resuming, the Standing Committee on Health held an unscheduled meeting. They had three Health Canada officials attend to speak about the regulation of natural remedies. The Chair of the Committee held up a stack of postcards the NHPPA had you send to Members of Parliament. He said he had received a large number of them. The other MPs on the Committee had also.

It also signals that public pressure is affecting the Conservative Party.

We need to let all MPs know that we want them to support Bill C-368 and that we want it to pass second reading and get into Committee. This will obligate the Standing Committee on Health to examine the issue and to get public input. The NHPPA is running a campaign to create this support. We invite you to participate. Call and write your MP. Sign our e-petition: nhppa.org/bill-c368.

We would also like you to go to the bottom of our Home page and subscribe to our email newsletter so we can tell you about our campaigns and volunteer opportunities.

Our Covid experience has taught us that our institutions, including Parliament, are no longer responsive to the citizen. This is a dangerous situation and one we cannot ignore. All of us are now personally responsible for doing whatever we can to get our institutions acting for the people again. Nowhere is this more important than on the issue of sovereignty over our own bodies. Health Canada is in the process of regulating natural remedies out of existence. We then will not have any health choices. We will be limited to chemical drugs as our only option. We will find ourselves in the position that one of the signatories of the Declaration of Independence, Dr. Benjamin Rush, warned against. Dr. Rush is cited as saying:

"Unless we put medical freedom into the Constitution, the time will come when medicine will organize into an underground dictatorship.... To restrict the art of healing to one class of men and deny equal privileges to others will constitute the Bastille of medical science. All such laws are un-American and despotic and have no place in a republic.... The Constitution of this republic should make special privilege for medical freedom as well as religious freedom."

We have the opportunity to work together and ensure our medical freedom. We can insist that the Charter of Health Freedom be enacted so that our medical freedom is preserved (charterofhealthfreedom.org).

If you get involved and do something daily to get our freedoms back, you will be surprised to learn how powerful you are. We don't have to be afraid. We don't have to think all is lost. Let's move forward with confidence and get our freedom back.

Join with us at nhppa.org

"Our Covid experience has taught us that our institutions, including Parliament, are no longer responsive to the citizen. This is a dangerous situation and one we cannot ignore."

They were getting your message that you want your access to natural remedies protected.

Some time ago, I asked Conservative MP Blaine Calkins if he could help. I volunteered to send him a draft private member's bill to repeal sections 500-504 of Bill C-47. These sections impose penalties intended for large pharmaceutical companies onto natural health companies and natural health practitioners. The maximum fine has increased from $5,000 an offence to $5,000,000 for every day there is an offence. A five-million-dollar fine may be pocket change for a company like Pfizer. A five-million-dollar fine would destroy any natural health company or natural health practitioner. On December 5, 2023, MP Calkins introduced Bill C-368 to repeal sections 500-504 of Bill C-47. This is an important step forward, as it brings this issue more into public notice.

Mainstream Censorship

His comments about my programs sparked a slew of national stories, which accused the programs of killing people, claiming that ABC had blood on its hands, and asking people to sue the ABC if they'd had a heart attack after stopping their statins because of the programs. To enforce the narrative, the School of Pharmacy at Sydney University came out with a study claiming that the programs would be responsible for up to 2900 deaths because around 60,000 people would quit taking statins. Basically, they were accusing us of mass murder.

I was then subjected to a 6-month investigation by ABC's internal review team, to determine if I had breached any codes of conduct - they had to assess whether the programs were legally sound, factually accurate, and editorially fair and balanced.

The results of the investigation found no factual errors in either of the programs, but in the second program, I was found to have "unduly favoured one perspective over another." I gave more weight to the view of experts (such as Harvard's Prof John Abramson and UCSF's Prof Rita Redberg), that statins were over-prescribed - which was rather ludicrous since the point of the program was to highlight the problem that statins were over-prescribed.

I received a call from the Director of TV to discuss the outcome of the investigation. He said to me plain and simple, which I'll never forget, "I've been told to make this go away." I didn't fully understand what that meant at the time, but I was about to find out.

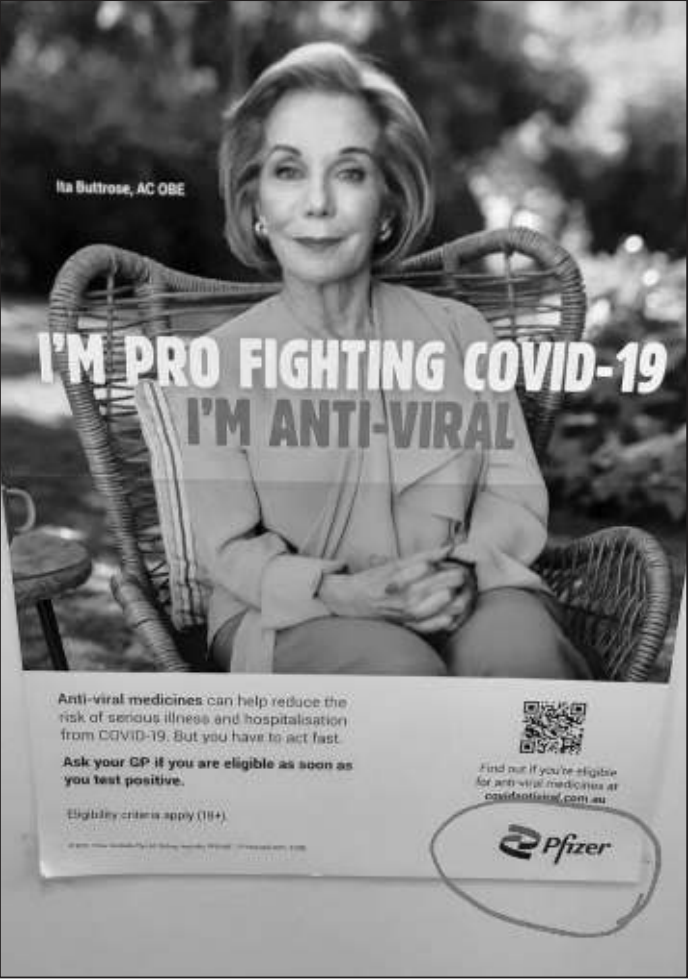

Without warning or compunction, the network made a public announcement that it would censor the two programs so that they could never be aired again, it took down a website that was dedicated to supplementary interviews and peer-reviewed papers, and replaced it all with a public apology.

This gave the false impression that we were admitting the programs were misleading. Consequently, I was attacked in the media, I was characterised as "pseudoscientific" and any attempt to defend me was censored. I became the target of an orchestrated campaign to discredit me.

An example of how this campaign played out, was the revelation of leaked documents from a front group for the breakfast cereal and grain industry. They held meetings to discuss how to neutralise my messaging ....Their meeting minutes (which were leaked) showed how they intended to hire "media influencers" to counter the narrative and they even named me as someone to be targeted for "active defence" because I posed a threat to their messaging. I wrote about this for Michael West Media at the time.

I was unable to challenge the criticisms against me. I was effectively silenced by my network and they were cancelling film shoots. They'd send me emails saying that I was not allowed to comment publicly or privately about these issues, or else they would consider it a breach of my employment conditions.

I was told to stop emailing my concerns because my emails could be FOI'd and become part of the public record, so if I had anything to say, I had to do it by phone or face-to-face.

I decided to put my head down and I continued to produce programs that exposed big food, big chemical, big pharma, and big telco and this continued to invite attacks from vested interests. Because of their complaints, I was regularly under internal investigation by the ABC.

Eventually, the pressure for the ABC was too great.

We'd spend a huge amount of resources defending the programs. Often it would take longer to defend a program than it would to make it. Because we were on tight budgets, this was simply unsustainable. The ABC made some excuse about trying to restructure the program, and I was put on 'gardening leave' for a few months (taken off air) until they decided that they would just get rid of virtually everyone in the unit.

The lessons? Well, I learnt that facts did not matter. This was difficult to stomach since I worked for "factual programming". As you saw with the cholesterol programs, they were both factually accurate, but because they upset the big end of town, they had to go.

False balance was another problem. They became obsessed with trying to "balance" a program. If I had an expert say that antidepressants caused harm, I'd have to interview another expert to say antidepressants had benefits, just to give the appearance of "balance." It undermined the experts, and it was sloppy journalism in my view, because we were no longer trusted to make sound editorial judgements about the content of our programs.

Unsurprisingly, it made the network reluctant to expose the pharmaceutical industry and report on drug or vaccine harms. Even though it did not receive drug company sponsorship directly, we still had to deal with their complaints and bad publicity in the media.

The TV network was very focused on ratings - whether it's a commercial or public broadcaster - they need "bums on seats." If people don't watch, it makes it harder for them to justify their existence, so this makes them vulnerable to bending to outside pressure.

And finally, I learnt that the ABC was willing to silence its own journalists in order to appease industry. This had a chilling effect on other mainstream journalists. The message was that it would be career suicide if you tried anything similar. And it seems to be a very effective strategy because I don't think I ever saw another story challenging statins in the Australian media again.

Since all that happened, I think the standards at the ABC have continued to slip. What was once considered the last bastion of independent journalism, now has the ABC's own Chairperson Ita Buttrose fronting advertising campaigns for Pfizer during the pandemic.

I think this is one of the more egregious breaches in editorial independence and ethical standards I've seen from a public broadcaster, and it's a shame, because the ABC was once considered a great institution. I'll leave it there and answer any questions. Thank you for listening.

Merchant vs. Common Law

this Maxim of law: "All law is contract and only contracts make the law."

Give the Canadian people, by referendum, their Constitution "in law," to make Government(s) at all levels accountable to the people of Canada.

There is a lot to learn, and after 35 years, I am still learning! This summary is a very concise overview of a Canadians' relationship with our CORPORATE GOVERNMENT(s) that controls the daily life of every Canadian from birth to death, and their Estate after death for 100 years. It is time for an honest and honourable Government and a Canada for Canadians - "in law"!

Sources of information to confirm factually what I've shared in this article and learned are up to each of us as individual Canadians.

I cannot change your relationship with the corporation CANADA's Government(s), only you can do that! Here is a list of some of the books and texts in PDFs that I have downloaded, read, studied, shared, and used, and continue to use to navigate my life purpose and mission as a Canadian with Commerce and with the financial, monetary, contract, Corporate Government(s), and their "at law" legal system.

This short Reference Bibliography for any Canadian is readily available at this moment on the Internet should any reader of this article choose to learn more about Approach the Internet information sources of factual, relevant, and unlimited information, with an open mind! ...and, have an amazing life!

....and remember this:

Eighty-one years after the publication in 1928 of Edward L. Bernays' book, Propaganda, Chris Hedges wrote the following in his 2009 book, Empire of Illusion: The End of Literacy and the Triumph of Spectacle.

"A public that can no longer distinguish between truth and fiction is left to interpret reality through illusion. Random facts or obscure bits of data and trivia are used either to bolster illusion and give it credibility, or discarded if they interfere with the message . . .

"When opinions cannot be distinguished from facts, when there is no universal standard to determine truth in law, in science, in scholarship, or in reporting the events of the day, when the most valued skill is the ability to entertain, the world becomes a place where lies become true, where people can believe what they want to believe. This is the real danger of pseudo-events, and pseudoevents are far more pernicious than stereotypes. They do not explain reality, as stereotypes attempt to, but replace reality. Pseudo-events redefine reality by the parameters set by their creators. These creators, who make massive profits selling illusions, have a vested interest in maintaining the power structures they control."

The people behind the wars we have faced for decades, in my lifetime, have never been investigated and removed from power. This article is the tip of the iceberg!

Some Of The Most Absurd Things That Have Happened In Recent Weeks

- According to new documents from the City of Toronto, the projected cost of renaming Dundas Street has ballooned to nearly $12.7 million — around double the initial estimates. The movement to rebrand Dundas gained steam in 2020 when many discovered that namesake Henry Dundas is believed to have had a hand in delaying the abolition of slavery in the British Empire. But, three former mayors (and others) have since criticized these interpretations of Dundas’s history as misreadings, saying that he was actually “a committed abolitionist.” While Toronto City Council never mentioned that Sir George Yonge did anything wrong (yet), the council officially voted last month to rename Yonge-Dundas Square to “Sankofa” Square, a word from Ghana that means reflecting on teachings from the past.
- Canadian healthcare wait times in 2023 have reached record-breaking levels, showing a 198% increase since 1993. As indicated by a new report from the Fraser Institute, the median wait time from referral to treatment is now 27.7 weeks, marking the lengthiest wait time in the survey’s history.
- According to a recent Statistics Canada report, occurrences of “unspecified causes” of death in the country have skyrocketed 300% since 2019, now making it the 5th leading cause of death in Canada.
- The Canadian government continues to bail out the mainstream media. Ottawa’s 2023 fall economic statement included a $129-million boost for “eligible” (aka mainstream) news organizations through an increase to a tax credit allowing them to now claim up to $29,750 per journalist.
- The CBC cancelled their usual New Year’s Eve countdown due to what the state broadcaster called “financial pressures.” Despite its gargantuan $1.3 billion budget, the CBC claimed that the countdown would simply be too expensive. In 2023, CBC president Catherine Tait received a salary increase of $60,000, bringing her annual salary to nearly $521,000 a year (up to $623,900 with bonuses).
- Al Gore says independent media is a threat to democracy. In a Bloomberg conference on climate change, the former US Vice President claimed that democracy works better with mainstream media because the news all has “a shared base of knowledge that serves as a basis for reasoning together.” Gore also claimed that sites that encourage users to explore “rabbit holes” are “the digital equivalent of AR-15s. They ought to be banned.”
- New Mexico hairstylists are being trained under a new CDC-funded program to push flu and COVID shots. Under “Chair Care,” a program funded by the CDC, New Mexico hairstylists are now being paid and trained as “trusted messengers” to promote COVID-19 and flu vaccines, especially to minority and conservative clients with low vaccination rates.

- Health Canada paid social media influencers to encourage COVID vaccination. Public Health Agency Canada paid a marketing agency called Mr. and Mrs. Jones to dish out approximately $10,000 to each influencer they hired.
- The Trudeau Government puts tampons in men’s bathrooms. A new policy requires all government offices and employers to provide free menstrual products for their employees in all washrooms — including men’s — at an estimated cost of $116.6 million over the next nine years.
- Three-year-olds were sent to Britain’s infamous transgender clinic. A report by the Daily Mail exposes the absurdity of London’s Tavistock Clinic. Between 2010 and 2020, 382 children aged three to six were referred for Britain’s transgender services. In the last decade, the clinic saw more than a 2,500% increase in the number of child and adolescent patients seen in a year. Fortunately, the Tavistock Clinic is closed at this time as they are facing a lawsuit from over 1,000 families for misdiagnosing their children and causing enormous harm, including the removal of healthy body parts.
- A FOIA request uncovering Health Canada’s contract with Pfizer exposes their liberal use of the word “safe.” The partially redacted contract (tinyurl.com/5n7m4evm) shows that authorities had no idea what the long-term effects of the mRNA vaccine would be when they signed this contract. Yet, after signing, they told Canadians aged six months and up to take a COVID vaccine because it was deemed “safe and effective.”
- No need to wonder why food prices are increasing. An Ontario Carleton County farmer’s one-month natural gas bill has gone viral, showing a whopping $16,050 Federal Carbon Tax charge.
- UK researchers raise the alarm that humans are contributing to global warming by breathing.

ing. Scientists at the UK Center for Ecology and Hydrology claim that human breathing contributes to greenhouse gas emissions, urging “caution in the assumption that emissions from humans are negligible.” The peer-reviewed study published in PLOS One (Dawson et al.) found that the UK population collectively breathes out about 1,100 tonnes of the greenhouse gases methane and nitrous oxide every year and reminded us that our farts, or “flatus emissions are likely to increase these values significantly.”

- Moderna monitors 150 million websites for “anti-vaccine” narratives. Moderna’s “disinformation department” partnered with an industry-backed nonprofit, the Public Good Projects, to monitor and suppress dissenting voices on COVID-19 vaccine policy, according to a new report by UnHerd.

- A stunning Japanese study that has now been published and peer-reviewed suggests that all COVID-19 variants were engineered in biolabs and intentionally released upon humanity. The study published in Zenodo titled “Unnaturalness in the evolution process of the SARS-CoV-2 variants and the possibility of deliberate natural selection” (Atsushi & Takayuki) noted that perfect reversions of mutations on such a scale, in addition to the lack of non-functional mutations, is completely implausible by any natural process.

- Dr. Robert Kadlec, Former US Assistant Secretary of Health and Human Services (Dr. Fauci’s superior), admits to Sky News Australia that he conspired with Fauci to downplay COVID lab-leak theory and reveals that he is “agonizing” over his actions.

- The National Transportation Safety Board has announced that it is calling on the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to mandate anti-speeding technology in newer vehicles. The systems use GPS location data, speed limits, and onboard cameras to force cars to drive below the posted speed in particular areas.
- A new Norwegian Public Health study published in Cambridge University Press (Elgersma et al.) finds that the incidence of COVID-19 was 40% higher in those who wore masks than those who did not.
- Study calling for unvaccinated people to be barred from public venues has been exposed as fraudulent. Furthermore, the study published in the Canadian Medical Association Journal titled “Impact of population mixing between vaccinated and unvaccinated subpopulations on infectious disease dynamics: implications for SARS-CoV-2 transmission” (Fisman et al.) was authored by a Pfizer advisor. Researchers Joseph Hickey, Ph.D., and Denis Rancourt, Ph.D., published their own peer-reviewed study calling out the aforementioned fraudulent one. They found that Fisman’s mathematical models are flawed, offering no true scientific backing for the imposition of anti-unvaccinated public policy.
