DEATH BY LOCKDOWN

By Anas Attia & Dale Hawkins

Yes, lockdowns kill! They are killing people, industries and livelihoods alike. They kill in many ways and with great force too. And no, we have never been locked-down like this before and there is no solid science to backup the claims of their effectiveness. The longer lockdowns continue, the worse things are going to get. They need to end now!

Almost everyone, including the World Health Organization, is in agreement that lockdowns are destroying society while offering little, if any, real-world effectiveness. A year later, the evidence for this is mounting, including real-world examples of lockdowns being lifted, resulting in lower Covid-19 cases.

Lockdowns are simply not proportionate reactions! They harm more than they help (and so), at what cost are we going to continue going down this path?

Death of Hope

Emotional and psychological effects of the lockdowns and fear-based news media contribute to the development and exacerbation of mental illness. They also directly contribute to deaths of despair.

People experience despair due to a bleak sense of their long-term social and economic outlook. Drug overdoses, suicides, weight gain and conditions like alcoholic liver disease are directly attributed to despair and are all on a sharp rise. It is also known that there is at least an additional 1% increase in suicides for every 1% increase in unemployment. It is not hard to imagine why people will seek destructive behaviour patterns, like drug abuse, in these trying times. This certainly includes children and the elderly alike. Despair can be a real killer.

Calls made to suicide help lines including Kids Helpline have more than doubled year-over-year in 2020 and are on trend to continue rising sharply in 2021. At this rate lockdowns are initiating what may soon be known as The Great Depression of our time...

Death of Childhood

No more hugging friends or talking to them during lunch break in school. No more smiling, singing or dancing and certainly no more sports either. No more field trips or family vacations. No school at all, even for weeks on end and when you are in school, you must stay inside your specific, drawn-out circle. Kids are slowly being forced to not socialize and they are being programmed with fear. Also, if you test "positive" for Covid-19, you have to be quarantined away for weeks. Even guilted into thinking you may kill someone if you break the rules!

The lockdowns are harming children. We are scaring them into extreme territories of dehumanization, forcing them to wear masks and robbing them of needed human closeness; for a virus that is less harmful than any past flu season. They have to wear masks with their friends and family. For everything. Many kids now do not feel comfortable bearing their face, even to their own parents! How important is facial expression and other social contact in early development and socialization? Gaslighted by government ad campaigns and mainstream media propaganda, kids are being convinced that they will kill their own grandparents, if they don't comply. Children of all ages are being robbed of their needed social development and in many ways, irrevocably so.

Death of Small Business

Costco and Walmart can let dozens of people in their stores at once (with massive lines of people crowding outside) yet other small businesses need to stay closed because they are deemed as "non-essential"? Numerous industries have been decimated from the restrictions including the events, entertainment, hospitality, and tourism industries to name a few. In reality, all forms of in-person work by small businesses have been impacted for more than a year, since the start of the lockdowns.

Much of the middle-class income and future opportunity is vanishing. Wealth disparity between the middle-class and the elites continues to increase, with big global corporations like Amazon, breaking sales records and further dominating the market, contrasted by a sharp increase in homeless population numbers and bankruptcies.

Death of Healthcare

In a world obsessed with Covid-19, all other health care considerations took a back seat. From the disastrous canceling of elective surgeries to, slowly but surely, losing most forms of private health care. We are destroying healthcare as we know it. And as much as they try to sell us on it, telephone meetings (that are now the norm for doctor visits) are not, in any way adequate for performing a role of a simple, in-person, appointment.

There is also a new instilled reluctance from the public to interact with health care workers, like intentionally avoiding going to the E.R. for what may truly be life threatening issues. Ailments are going undiagnosed through telephone appointments, and to top it off, mental disorders are developing or exacerbating without the usual social support systems in place.

Death of Rights and Freedoms

What makes Canada one of the greatest countries in the world? The simple answer is, freedom. Where that freedom stems from is a bit more controversial, but, The Charter of Rights and Freedoms, The Bill of Rights, The Constitution and Police Code of Conduct, among many other regulatory bodies in Canada, are what contribute to making this country amongst the freest of countries in the world.

The Canadian Bill of Rights, as an example, provides an individual's right to life, liberty and security, whilst enabling freedom of religion, speech, assembly and association and press.

For the first time in Canada's short history, these rights and freedoms are under attack. The government, working with big corporations, have ramped up censorship online, where most of our social communication happens. It is becoming exceedingly difficult to find information that goes against the mainstream narrative.

Death of Protest

For the first time in Canadian history, protesting was "deemed" illegal. On January 16th, 2021, two weeks after Ontario initiated a stay-at-home order, Toronto Police took an aggressive stance on protesting. That day, hundreds of police officers lined Dundas Square and arrested and ticketed dozens of protesters seemingly at random, setting a trend for the next few weeks. Even people who stayed "socially distant" were ticketed and/or arrested if they appeared to not be there for "essential exercise."

Governments throughout that world have ushered in anti-protest laws. Last month in the U.K., "The Police, Crime, Sentencing and Courts Bill" was passed, and it limits the right to protest in many ways, including: allowing police to impose start and finish times, arrest "annoying" protesters and outright ban protests in front of the U.K. Parliament. Similarly, multiple U.S. states passed anti-protest laws, including Oklahoma and Iowa where granted immunity to drivers whose vehicles strike and injure protesters in public streets, and anyone convicted of unlawful assembly is barred from holding state employment in Indiana and barred from receiving student loans, unemployment insurance, or housing assistance in Minnesota.

Death of Informed Consent

Individuals receiving COVID-19 vaccines are typically not informed that the vaccines have not been FDA approved (they are being distributed via "Emergency Use Authorization" in the US and "Interim Order Authorization" in Canada, which is technically allowed because we are in a "state of emergency"). Clinical trials will not be concluded until 2023, and by consenting to take the vaccine now, you are consenting to participate in phase 3 and 4 of these clinical trials. Vaccine manufacturers are not liable for any injuries you may sustain, including death. Neither are insurance companies.

Death of Scientific Inquiry

The pandemic response has had a haunting effect on the pursuit of truth. For science to thrive, opposing ideas must be openly and vigorously discussed and either supported or countered based on facts and data. Instead, politicians, journalists, doctors and scientists

Why We Cannot Trust the Vaccine Data

By Ava Pritchard

For over 30 years, Johnson & Johnson knew that the company’s raw talc and finished powders sometimes tested positive for asbestos, and the company executives, mine managers, scientists, doctors and lawyers fretted over the problem and how to address it while failing to disclose it to regulators or the public. When questioned, J&J assured the U.S. Food and Drug Administration that no asbestos was “detected in any sample.” As a result of their negligence and greed, roughly 25 thousand of their customers developed a rare form of cancer and many died. The company announced last May that it would stop selling its iconic talc-based Johnson’s Baby Powder in the US and Canada. J&J gaslight their own user-base by attributing their decision to “misinformation around the safety of the product and a constant barrage of litigation advertising.” And this is a company we are told to trust with our lives?

The four companies who have COVID vaccines on the market are or have either: never brought a vaccine to market before COVID (Moderna and Johnson & Johnson). Are serial felons (Pfizer, and AstraZeneca). Are both (Johnson & Johnson). Moderna had been trying to “Modernize our RNA” for years, but had never successfully brought any product to market until now (it seems the US government’s infusion of $1.53 billion dollars helped.) Meanwhile, all other vaccine manufacturers have paid out tens of billions of dollars in damages for other products they brought to market when they knew those products would cause injuries and death. If these drug companies willfully choose to put harmful products on the market when they can be sued, why would we trust any product where they have no liability?

Major Johnson & Johnson lawsuits and recalls for faulty products include:

- 2019: bribery (for illegally paying off government officials in return for securing contracts national health programs along with price gouging and inflating prices in Brazil
- 2011: corrupt payments to physicians in Greece
- 2010: buying off officials in Greece, Poland and Romania.
- 2013 & 2016: paid billions to compensate victims of their flawed products.
- 2008: engaged in a “phantom recall” when its Motrin IB caplets were discovered to not properly dissolve, J&J hired outside contractors to buy up store supplies in order to avoid making public declaration.
- 1995: paid a $7.5 million fine for destroying documents to cover up an investigation into wrongful marketing of its Retin-A acne cream.
- 2001: Paid out $860 million in a class action lawsuit for misleading customers about prematurely discarding its 1-Day Acuvue soft contact lens. J&J recommended they should be worn only once, although it was discovered the lenses were no different than the regular Acuvue lens that would last for two weeks.
- 2010: paid a $81 million settlement for misbranding its anti-epileptic drug Topamax to treat psychiatric disorders and hired outside physicians to join its sales force to promote the drug for unapproved conditions. The following year, J&J paid $85 million for similar charges against its heart drug Natrekor.
- 2011: Several J&J baby products were discovered to contain carcinogenic ingredients.
- 2013: The U.S. Justice Department charged the company $2.2 billion in criminal fines for marketing its autism and anti-psychotic drug Risperdal for unapproved uses.
- 2019: ordered to pay $465 million for its role in Oklahoma’s opioid epidemic.

While J&J’s rap sheet is long Pfizer has the distinction of the biggest criminal payout in history. The company lost so many lawsuits it’s hard to count. Below is a list of just some Psizer’s crimes:

- 2009: paid a record $2.3 billion to settle federal charges for mis-promoting medicines not approved by medical regulators (Bextra) and paying kick-backs to compliant doctors.
- 1996: paid $10.75 million to settle Justice Department claims that the company lied to get federal approval for a mechanical heart valve that has been fracturing, killing hundreds of people.

- 2004: reached a $60 million settlement of a class action lawsuit over it’s Rezulin diabetes drug that resulted in liver failure and death.
- 2016: fined £85 million by the UK government for overcharging the NHS 2600%
- 2004: paid more than $430 to resolve criminal charges and civil liabilities for manipulating the publication of scientific studies to bolster the use of its epilepsy drug Neurontin for other disorders, while supressing research that did not support those uses. They also paid physicians to prescribe the drug for other disorders, and partook in racketeering in the marketing of the drug. During the investigation, they admitted to paying $20 million to 4,500 doctors and other medical professionals for consulting and speaking on it’s behalf just in the last 6 months of 2009. Pfizer also paid $15.3 million to 250 academic medical centers

- and other research groups for clinical trials.
- 2012: US Securities and Exchange commission reached a $45 million settlement with Pfizer to resolve charges that its subsidiaries bribed overseas doctors to increase foreign sales.
 - 2001: paid over $75 million dollars for breaking international laws for conducting an “illegal trial of an unregistered drug” after Nigerian families accused the company of testing 2 dangerous new antibiotics (Trovan & Ceftriaxone) without parents’ consent and using their children as human guineapigs. 11 children died, and other suffered brain damage, paralysis, and hearing loss.

Pfizer also pledged to donate and distribute $50 million worth of AIDS drugs, but never did. And more recently with the COVID-19 vaccine, Pfizer is demanding that countries that don’t have liability protection put up collateral to cover vaccine-injury lawsuits. They have even demanded military bases as guarantee.

Finally, AstraZeneca has similarly lost so many lawsuits it’s hard to count. Many of their crimes are related to fraudulent marketing. The company had its COVID vaccine suspended in at least 18 countries over concerns of a rare form of blood clot occurring in young women, and it completely botched its meeting with the FDA when numbers from their study didn’t match. And then Johnson & Johnson and AstraZenca, had a little mix up in their ingredients in 15 million doses!

Given the free pass from liability, and the checkered past of these companies, why would we assume that all their vaccines are safe and made completely above board? Bernstein market analyst Ronny Gal predicts COVID-19 vaccine sales will reach $40 billion this year. A more realistic figure is likely higher as together, Moderna and Pfizer project their revenues at $32 billion. What crime might these companies commit to keep their vaccines on the market?

Previous to this year, approximately 6% of vaccines developed passed their trials and made it to market. Is it not odd that all of the vaccines developed for COVID so far have been approved for “Emergency Use Authorization” in the US and “Interim Order Authorization” in Canada (they cannot get FDA approval until their studies are completed)? Remember, we will not have access to the raw data of these studies until 2023. Until then, we just have to take the word of known liars and criminals. Where else in life would we trust someone with that kind of reputation, let alone trust someone with our lives?

The Cop Who Came In From The Cold

One of the more unique stories over the last week of almost constant small scale protesting at multiple locations throughout the province was the case of Mississauga Ontario based Huf Boxing Gym, which has remained open since Wednesday in spite of police and bylaw enforcement efforts to the contrary.

On Friday, the gym was visited by an on-duty Peel Regional Police officer who announced that he supported the gym’s efforts to remain open, didn’t wear a mask, then offended a local member of the legacy media by offering to hug people and pose for photos.

Good times were then had by all except perhaps for Global News correspondent Sean O’Shea, who was on-site in the parking lot at Huf Gym and took offence to hugging in general and anyone hugging him in particular.

The reporter was also confronted by a number of other protestors, most of whom didn’t want to hug him, but instead were angry regarding his biased perspective on the situation.

As noted in the April 16, 2021 Global News post, “Peel officer suspended after hugging COVID-19 protesters, accusing the journalist of agitating attendees,” the Peel Regional Police service suspended the officer (with pay) as soon as they learned about his actions through social media.

Because that’s what people, even police chiefs, currently depend on for their view of reality. Going outside to see what’s actually going on is “verboden” under the current Ontario provincial government.

Peel Regional Police Chief Nishan Duraipappah later issued a statement (also on social media) indicating that the “Peel Regional Police are committed to ensuring the safety of our members and the public. Our officers will enforce municipal and provincial regulations as required.”

Later in the day and as noted in the April 18, 2021 Freedom Forum News post, “Ontario Reverses COVID-19 Restrictions after Criticism from Experts & Police: With Commentary from Viva Frei,” and the April 17, 2021 Insauga post, “Police won’t randomly stop people or vehicles in Mississauga and Brampton,” the Peel Regional Police Association (PRPA) was among the numerous Ontario police associations which came out against new provincial government restrictions, calling them in conflict with the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

Many, but not all, of those restrictions have since been reversed. Maybe Sean O’Shea should have taken the hug when it was offered.

Creating a Better World Begins in Your Community

By Norbert Orlewicz, Librti.com

Despite what the mainstream media would like Canadians to believe, there are positive solution based initiatives taking place across our great country! Freedom loving Canadians are making new connections, new friends, and rediscovering the old ways of living and taking comfort in the simple things as we navigate this “new” world together.

The other day I received a call from a woman in Nanaimo. I met her at the first Mega Rally in Vancouver back in October. She travelled from the Island to the mainland and lost her ride back to the ferry and was needing a place to stay for the night. Most of the people had left by this point, and the few people in our immediate group were not able to help her. So, I decided to book her and her little puppy a hotel for the night, so she could feel relaxed and have time to make arrangements to return home the next day. Thinking back on that call I received from her, I could tell how upset she was from the worry and anxiety in her voice. She was reaching out because she needed someone to connect with that she could trust. Her need for connection, community and support is something Odessa and I have heard from people across the country for almost a year now. We never know the impression we make on others, and it is beautiful how quickly trust can be built within our community when we all connect on shared values.

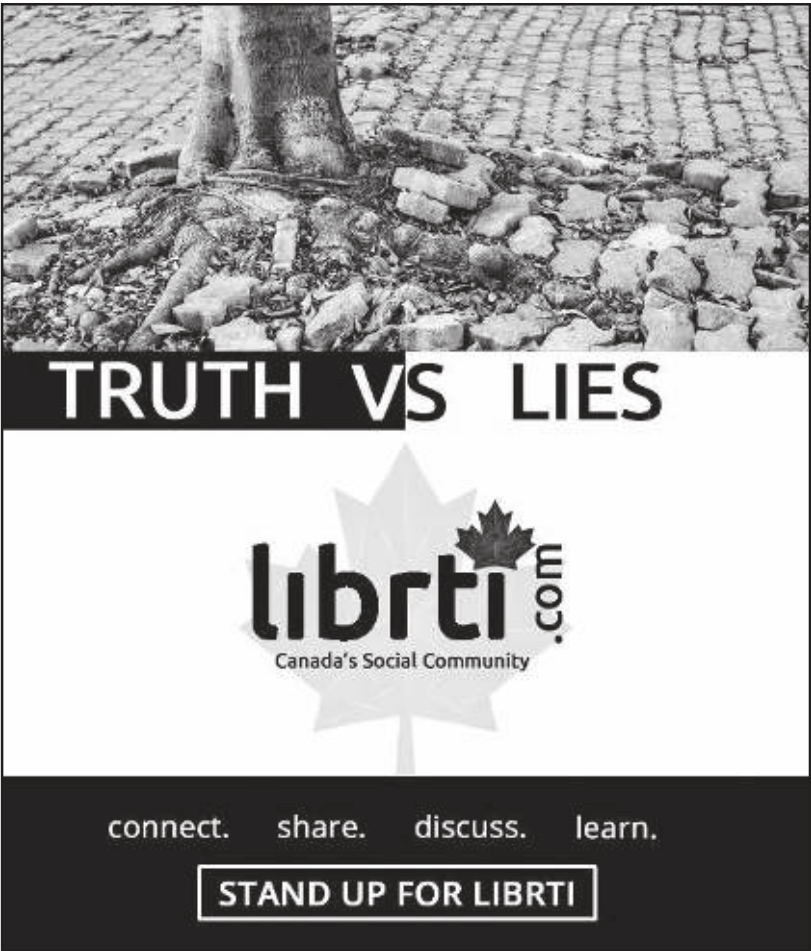

Ever since Odessa started her YouTube show, we have consistently received comments, messages and emails from people across the country who feel isolated because of their beliefs, who yearn for connection and a sense of belonging as a direct result of the rolling restrictions, mandates, and lockdowns. This was one of the original inspirations for creating the Librti Social Platform (Librti.com); to give Canadian freedom lovers and patriots a place to connect, discuss, and find comfort within a community of like minded people without censorship.

Each of us in our own way, is dealing with the reality of what we are learning about the nature of the world we are living in. It is not easy to take it all in and imagine what it is we all need to do if we are to change the path we are on. Hourly we are bombarded with fearful messaging from the media, it goes without saying that good news stories are exceedingly rare these days. So, it was an absolute joy to read about how the people of Ontario and the Police Departments across the province immediately pushed back with such decisiveness in response to the Ford government’s new restrictions in April, rejecting the use of Ford’s controversial new Police Powers, and demanding that playgrounds and sports fields be reopened. While many simply ignored the restrictions with simple civil disobedience.

Our collective voices are getting louder and more of us are standing up and standing strong! I was delighted to learn about a small community in Durham region that brought their children out to the community park for a gathering in defiance of the by-law officers who were called by their neighbours. Here in Vancouver, more inspiration! A restaurant owner defiantly led a rally right in front of her closed down restaurant! Simple, but bold and direct defiance, and it is happening all across the land.

There are some very positive and inspiring things taking place right now! Rather than fighting against the system, people are gathering to create positive experiences and solutions. I received an email from a lady who is part of a group I belong to, she highlighted several initiatives people are leading within their respective communities that I would like to share with you, not only to inspire you to get involved, but to send a message of hope that productive groups are forming across Canada. One of the initiatives mentioned in the email, and one that I am very intrigued by, is the Forest School, started by 6 families that has grown into over 100 families! Forest School focuses on teaching people how to forage, reconnect to nature, and letting kids be kids, free to play outdoors. This type of community is an amazing opportunity for parents and children to connect with each other and the Earth. The growth of the Forest School has allowed parents to branch off to create different activity groups, as well as taking part in respectful civil disobedience such as assembling at parks where closures have been announced. It is all very inspirational! Other areas this community is focusing on include the promotion and education of health and nutrition from a preventative perspective.

These incredibly special families are also creating communities dedicated to: gardening, sprouting, herbs, herbal medicines, small balcony gardens, community gardens, preserving, canning, fermenting, storing food, homeschool pods, support groups, and mask free sports clubs (restriction free sports). Groups of families are coming together to order and stock foods in bulk to ensure food security through difficult times. We are stronger together and this is absolute proof!

The importance of facilitating the coming together and growth of communities across the country is paramount to sustaining any type of “normal” life for ourselves and our children. As this agenda keeps moving forward, ever faster, I think people are fearful of not knowing what to do or what to expect. However, in spite of continued restrictions, more and more people are stepping up, creating solutions, and are forming communities. There is hope! We have a unique opportunity to create our own future together.

We no longer need to waste negative energy fighting back against the current systems. We need to put out positive energy and invest our money, time and resources into creating alternatives and new establishments that align with our values and beliefs that will move us into creating a future we want for ourselves and the ones we love. If we continue relying on the systems and establishments that are working against us, we will hardly ever see the end of this not so “great-reset”.

Each of us can find our own way of contributing to this incredible movement. On Librti.com, we’ve built a new Communities feature, which allows our members to connect with people in their local cities, towns and communities in the hopes of facilitating more connection and collaboration. As you connect with locals in your area, who share your values and also desire to focus on solutions, we can only imagine the kind of positive change we can create throughout this country. Canadians are connecting and forming communities, discovering events and gatherings, and sharing critical information free of censorship on Librti.com. I invite you to join us and connect with your Community.

Am I Being Selfish?

By Ted Kuntz

Those of us who question the prevailing COVID narrative and demand independent scientific and medical evidence are accused of “being selfish”. The argument put forward is that we are only concerned with ourselves.

I see it another way. I see the complete dismantling of our rights and freedoms and our sovereignty, both individual and national. I see the destruction of our economy, our livelihoods and our communities of care. I see the opinions of the uninformed, the misinformed, and those with conflicted interests dictating personal lifestyle and healthcare choices for the rest of us. I see robust, evidence-based practices being discarded and the scientific facts considered irrelevant. I see the aggressive censoring of dialogue and debate if the information doesn’t conform to the government’s narrative. I see another agenda at play. An agenda to create a ‘new normal’ where human rights and freedom are discarded and replaced by mandates and dictates of autocratic and unelected leaders. Where pharmaceutical and technology corporations, free of legal liability, are at liberty to impose vaccines, digital chipping, contact tracing, and passports upon citizens, with or without our consent.

If I were truly selfish, the easiest course of action right now would be to line up for that injection, don a mask, ignore when my privacy is violated, and confine myself to my home. But I can’t do these things and I won’t do these things. I can’t allow this encroaching tyranny to capture my family, my community, and my fellow human beings.

When I resist poorly tested vaccine products, micro-chipping, forced masking, the loss of privacy, and the forced use of documents to prove my compliance, I’m not doing it for my well-being. I resist these flagrant violations of our rights and freedoms, of science and democracy, for my children and grand-children’s children. I’ve lived my life with rights and freedoms, and I recognize when these freedoms are being unnecessarily constrained.

I know that governments, corporations and well-intended citizens can do evil while purporting to do good. I know tyranny exists and I know the characteristics of psychopathic and sociopathic behaviour. I have lived long enough to recognize the markings of an encroaching imprisonment. I resist these measures because I believe resistance is for the greater good.

I know that strong and healthy individuals are the basis of a strong and healthy society. If the measures being imposed don’t take into consideration the health of our community, the health of our economy, and the health of our relationships; if the actions violate our rights and freedoms and our bodily sovereignty; and if the actions are not evidence-based, they are not the right actions.

I believe it’s time to stand up and defend our freedoms, our families, and our country. Taking orders from financially conflicted philanthropists and foreign entities does not serve us well. I will not stand by and allow this manipulation of our hearts and minds to destroy everything we hold precious.

I will not go along because it is easier.

This Is Why We Are Protesting

By Tea Lynn Moore

April 25, 2021 marks the 1 year anniversary of Canada's fight for our rights and freedoms. The Canadian freedom movement started with a small group of protesters in downtown Toronto, and has evolved into many groups made up of thousands of Canadians with all sorts of political beliefs and backgrounds, uniting for human rights. The protests focus on a variety of issues at hand, including: lockdowns, vaccine choice & safety, the suppression of COVID treatments (like Ivermectin and Zinc with HCQ), isolating and masking of children in school, scientific fraud, censorship/freedom of speech, government and corporate overreach, The Great Reset, and many more!

The mainstream media wants you to believe these are simply "anti-mask" rallies, they are not. For some, masks may be an issue, however these protests have been going on since long before masks were mandated (remember when the WHO was "anti-mask") and if masks were abolished tomorrow, these protests would still continue. "Anti-mask" name-calling is an example of willful-ignorance and the mainstream media's way of belittling the movement. We all know there is so much more we are fighting for. This is a human rights movement - one that's been needed for a long time, and one that will continue to grow until the people who ought-not-to-be in power are out of power, and humanity is put first again.

So why are we fighting for human rights?

In May 2020, during one of the early protests at Queens Park, Toronto, ESL teacher Mike Jackson encompassed the mission brilliantly during the following speech:

"My name is Mike. Although who I am doesn't really matter. What matters is what I am, because that is what brought me here today. I'm a father, I'm a husband, I'm a brother, a friend, I'm a son, I'm a grandson, I'm an uncle, I'm a teacher, I'm a student -we're always learning- that's why I'll never stand up here and try to say I know everything, but I'm going to tell you how I feel. I'm a worker. I believe in a creator, I'm a Canadian, I'm a human being, and I'm angry! I am outraged at the Federal, Provincial, and Municipal government's negligent lockdown at the expense of the economy and the very things that makes Canada, Canada. Democracy, capitalism, freedom. There's a reason why we have a Charter of Rights and Freedoms. I'm angry at a lockdown based on shoddy scientific models and government-sponsored statistical fraud at the behest of unelected, international institutions. Institutions like the World Hoax Organiz -no, World Health Organization, World Economic Forum, and the United Nations. Unelected, international institutions that are controlled by a handful of wealthy elite psychopaths hell-bent on unilaterally imposing their own globalist ideological vision of the future at the expense of our innate, GOD-given human rights and freedoms and our GOD-given right to live.

If this was truly about safety, the moment the data showed the death rate was equivalent to a bad flu season, the lockdown should have ended right then -but it didn't. It transformed into a cultural shift to the "new normal," with children isolated in circles at school drawn out on the pavement. Meanwhile, our leaders are living by the 'old normal'. Do you know how trainers keep elephants from running away with a little piece of string around their foot? When they are babies they use huge chain-linked chains. Once they give up trying to break it, they switch it to a little, thin rope. This is what they are doing to our children. If our children are living in circles, they don't believe they can do anything beyond that. This is what they are doing.

History is wrought with tyrannical dictators and regimes seeking more and more power over the people - from Stalin to Mussolini, from the Pharaoh in the Bible to Hitler. Fear, intimidation, and propaganda are the hallmarks of government power grabs and oppression. However, these historical examples that burned into our memory were limited to specific nations and geographic locations. Today, it is on a total global scale, crossing all borders. Never, in human history, has there ever been such an attempt; such an orchestrated, deliberate attempt to overthrow and subjugate every man, woman and child on the face of this planet. This is not a racist agenda, No, no, no! This is not a racist agenda, this an anti-human agenda. And our politicians have been either bribed, threatened or even worse, in favour of these treasonous crimes against humanity, because that is what it is.

Make no mistake. This lockdown is the single greatest human rights, civil rights attack in history or our species and most people are still asleep to the tyranny that is unfolding before us. For example, look at the police. Whether they realize or not, we are fighting for them and their children's future too. And I know in my heart, like we've seen in parts of Europe, eventually the police will stand down and support us because we're fighting for them too. Let's be real: no parent wants their child to have their wings clipped. Every parent wants their children to have a future. This is what this is about. And having a future can only happen in free and just society. So, yes. We really are all in this together.

I cannot tell you how inspiring it is to see so many informed people speaking up. There are many of you with many valid, and yet very different reasons... medical freedom, ending the lockdown, right to work, cures being suppressed. We are all probably experiencing, when you talk to your loved ones and try to enlighten them, their ears are turned off. Our uninformed friends and families will not unite under these banners due to the unjust... 'conspiracy theory' branding so people won't listen."

"The mainstream media is cancer!" -random guy in the crowd shouts.

"Indeed it is" -says Mike J.

"But there is some very good news about these different issues: it's that they all fall under one umbrella issue; this is all about freedom. This is all about government overreach and suppression of our GOD-given human rights and freedoms at the hands of a few. An un-elected few. This is what the majority of us can unite under, because they are not fully aware of what's really happening, they haven't gone down the rabbit hole. So we have to unite under what this issue is really about; human rights. This is the same issue that has united human-kind since the dawn of time, although under different labels. It doesn't matter if you are white, black, brown, liberal, conservative, Canadian, American, Russian, French, English, Indian, Christian, Muslim, Hindu, Catholic, Buddhist, rich or poor. This is oppression on a planetary scale. So this directly affects us all.

If you give up living in order to live, then they have already won. Many are afraid of hardship and dying for a cause, but if we are afraid to live, and we will be if this global, unelected body rules us and takes root. Come on, if we are afraid to live then we are already dead.

Oh, my fellow Canadians, the truth north is no longer free. If we want to restore Canadian sovereignty and the Charter of Rights and Freedoms, we have to take action in a productive way. And I know all you want to do something, but you may not know what you can do. You may be saying, 'I'm just one person, what impact could I possibly have?' A big one, my friends, a big one.

Here is one way. If every person here wrote 10 very short letters and sent them by Canada Post every Monday to the Prime Minister, the Premier... they can manipulate the news, they can manipulate social media, but they can't stop the mail. Another thing you can do. Make a document and put it in the mailbox of every house on your street. If we all do this, our truth gets out, the message gets out, and it cannot be censored.

This lockdown is illegal as it is not backed by science, case closed! This is a human rights issue, and tyranny is at our doorstep. So rise up. Be steadfast. Be fearless. Take action, but make sure it is peaceful because we are not like them. If you're scared, remember what you are fighting for deep in your heart. You find it! I'm fighting for my loved ones. I'm fighting for my right to exist freely and independently. Lastly, if you believe in a creator, trust he is with you because we are fighting a just cause. Do this. Do this, and GOD willing, we will defeat this scourge on humanity."

Although this speech is now a year old, it is sadly just as relevant today as it was back then. But we have since made an impact. Like Mike suggested, we've written letters. We've also protested, helped businesses re-open, and have helped people reunite with their families. Mike's second idea, giving your neighbours a document informing people of what's going on, is happening right now with Druthers.

Thank you for opening your mind and being part of the solution to bring human rights and freedoms back to life.

Would a Vaccine "Immunity Passport" Violate The Canadian Charter Of Rights And Freedoms?

By Justice Centre For Constitutional Freedoms @ JCCF.ca

In the latest escalation of rights infringements, governments in Canada are now actively discussing vaccine passports, which would effectively mandate vaccination for Covid.

A government threatening or mandating liberty restrictions against Canadians who do not want a Covid vaccine would, in our view, be a violation of the section 7 right to life, liberty and security of the person, and the right not to be deprived thereof except in accordance with the principles of fundamental justice. Once established, the government would then have to prove that this serious rights infringement is demonstrably justified on a preponderance of evidence.

The Supreme Court of Canada, in a foundational case, established that in Canada freedom means the absence of coercion or constraint. If Canadian governments move to force or otherwise mandate vaccines, they need to be effectively and immediately challenged in court.

JCCF: Founded in 2010 as a voice for freedom in Canada's courtrooms, the mission of the Justice Centre is to defend the constitutional freedoms of Canadians through litigation and education. We fight for Canada to become and remain a free society, where the equality of all Canadians and their individual freedoms are celebrated and respected. www.JCCF.ca

What is all the excitement about? People everywhere are celebrating a vax jab with social media pics of their vaccine card, stickers that proudly state “I Got Vaccinated!!” and thumbs up congratulations all around as if the recipients just had a baby or won the lottery. I’m surprised people aren’t giving out cigars with “It’s a Covid Jab!” printed on the wrapping.

There hasn’t been this sort of celebration since World War II blood drives resulting in the proud display of a window plaque that read “I Did My Part for the War Effort!” Indeed you did, my friend, indeed you did! You did your part for the war effort!

What war? Oh right, the war against Covid-19, or more accurately, the war against Mother Nature. Mother Nature? How’s that? We’ve been in a rather silent war with that esteemed lady for quite some time.

Only recently it has become rather noisy, and now, with Covid-19, it has reached a deafening pitch. Why would that sort of war excite people? And what does getting the vaccine have anything to do with a war against nature? Mankind has had a stupefying obsession with technology since before the Russians launched Sputnik in 1957.

Much of our love affair with technology has been very rewarding, so no complaint there. But along with the wonderful results of all that incredible science and ingenuity we have become more and more disconnected from the dust we have been made from. Humans have always had a weird relationship with messy, smelly, nature.

When Darwin came along people were more disgusted with the possibility that we could have ascended from the dirty, stupid, apes rather than expressing a disgust that Darwin’s theory of evolution was challenging the prevailing position we just appeared here, all squeaky clean and special, from the actual hand of God. Forget nature, we want to stay away from that muck—as far away as we can! Not only dirty, it can hurt us, and quite easily kill us!

Before medical technology caught up with our wildest dreams of living forever with no suffering, we had to make do. If a virus came along we were forced to let nature run its course. Before vaccines were discovered with the advent of Dr. Edward Jenner’s incredible work with cowpox, we didn’t have a choice but to grovel at the feet of Mother Nature and let her do her thing. Ultimately it all turned out pretty well; we are still here, aren’t we? – due to, among other things, the miracle of our immune systems. Things are different now, transhumanism is on the rise and is arriving hand in hand with the upcoming technocracy—we may one day actually be able to live forever! Yahoo! Certainly we can fight this war with Covid, with nature, and win the battle—one step closer to conquering nature entirely!

We can cheat death, cheat illness, cheat suffering! Pass out the cigars! What is the price? Humanity? That sounds too close to being ruled by nature—we certainly can give up these “human” things—smiles, touching, hugging, gathering—all things that engage our human bodies, and human hearts. These are things too close to what animals do, with animal bodies, animal instincts. That’s fine to give up, as Fauci says, we should probably never shake hands again—it’s too dangerous being human.

Although I would surmise that people who are overly jubilant to get the vaccine do not necessarily believe they are transforming their body to super-human status due to the gene therapy mechanism in the chemistry of the vaccination (I doubt if most even know what that is), but rather most of them are intrigued by the new technology they have heard it employs. There is almost nothing in the modern medicine drug pantheon that is 100% effective, safe, or free of side effects, and even though it is clear the Covid vaccines also fall into this disappointment, the general public has indeed been told it is 95% effective and 100% safe (not bothering to be careful to ascertain what exactly it is effective in accomplishing). They are also nearly 100% synthetic, with a synthetic, high tech, mechanism.

This view is a predominant one for vaccine lovers created primarily by the bottomless pockets of the manufacturers who spend countless millions in marketing and in successful attempts to show their customers how safe and effective their product is. “Look at how wonderful new technologies can be?” say their targets. “Those scientists are so very clever!” Yes, technology can be wonderful, and yes, scientists can be very clever.

Unfortunately there have probably been more disasters in the experimental stages of products the big pharmaceutical companies want to market than successes—at least a fair share of them. The vaccines have been approved as experimental therapy, nothing more. How many times was it that Edison tested his light bulb before it was successful? How many times did he think it was going to work after “this one final experiment”—and it didn’t?

There is no question that Edison was very clever, but this is the way of science and new discovery, and it always has been. And don’t tell me that mRNA technology has been studied for decades. That doesn’t cut it; Covid-19 had only been with us for about 9 months when the vaccines were rolled out. For one example of this corner cutting: you can’t have results of a two-year study until two years have passed, and that isn’t a conspiracy theory.

This article is not meant to be an indictment against Big Pharma (there are plenty of those out there already) but it is meant to be a wakeup call to those who think it is safe to just “take your chances” and forego the fine print—assuming you can even find the fine print to read.

So what is all the excitement about? Well, if you ask anyone who has just gotten a jab they will most likely tell you that they feel like celebrating doing their part to save the human race. They may think that is the case, but I believe the real reason is a strange, and possibly largely unconscious, belief that technology will save them from actually being human.

We seem to believe that we have risen from animal status to some sort of higher, transhuman status, or at least are on our way to that lofty position. If we trust our scientists and others who are leading the way, we may even one day be able to transcend death itself, because death, of course, is the messiest animal thing an animal does and we don’t want that.

Dear Toronto: I love You, But I Hardly Recognize You

Dear Toronto. I was born and raised in your city, but I hardly recognize you or any of the people that live here anymore. Don’t you remember? It was you and I who high-fived each other up and down Yonge Street after the Toronto Raptors won the NBA championship back in June of 2019. Two million of us hugged and embraced each other just a few days later at the championship parade. You and I shook hands at the Scotiabank arena that one time the Toronto Maple Leafs actually won a meaningful game. You and I fist bumped and did a shot of tequila together at the Brazen head pub in Liberty Village after a Toronto FC game on a perfect July Saturday afternoon. We also shared a laugh on the TTC and on the Go train on the ride home together after the game. But today, Toronto, I don’t recognize you. You’re in shambles compared to what you used to be. How did you get so lost? How did you begin to live in so much fear? Have you actually stopped and thought about it? How did you get to the point where you thought putting a facemask on a six or seven-year-old child for eight hours a day was an excellent idea? Don’t you remember your own childhood?

The people of Toronto and all across Canada are mostly good people. And I think good people have a difficult time understanding the fact that there are evil people in this world. Good people will have a hard time understanding the concept that there are people in this world that will lie to your face and deceive you, and that those same people simply don’t care whether you live or die.

Well Toronto, and to the rest of Canada, I’m here to break some news to you: you are being lied to, and you are being deceived. Unfortunately, you’ve been lied to by some of the worst actors on the face of this planet.

Of the things that continues to blow my mind is just how bad of actors these people are. Justin Trudeau was a drama teacher prior to going into politics. We all know that more often than not, most drama teachers are just failed actors.

Dear Toronto, it’s time for you to begin to understand that there’s a very devious and deceitful plan in place by these politicians and medical officials that you’re watching on TV every day. Their plan is to completely take away all of your rights and freedoms, and they will literally never come back, for you or your children, until you can begin to understand and accept that this is all a complete lie. These people refuse to acknowledge data and continue to rely on easily manipulated computer modeling that creates their desired effect: more lockdowns and more restrictions.

You turned on your TV two weeks ago and watched the Toronto Blue Jays play the Texas rangers in front of 50,000 people. Have you thought for one second why nothing bad has happened to any of those people who attended the game or played in the game? You turned on your TV back in February and watched Tom Brady lead the Tampa Bay Buccaneers to a Super Bowl title with Toronto-based singer ‘The Weekend’ performing the halftime show in front of a packed stadium in Florida. Have you thought for one second why nothing bad has happened to ‘The Weekend,’ or any of the thousands in that stadium, while you’re still walking around in fear everyday of your life?

Sports and concerts have been happening all across the United States over the past year, at the high school level, as well as college and professional sports, yet there have to have been zero health issues that have arisen because of these activities. Meanwhile, here in Canada, it’s illegal and punishable with a heavy fine for a young boy or girl to simply go to the park and shoot some hoops or kick a soccer ball around the park. That’s not science – it’s evil.

Did you know that all three of Canada’s major league soccer teams are playing their season in the United States because the Canadian government won’t allow them to play in Canada? Both Toronto FC and Montreal are playing their home games in Florida, yet no fans are allowed in attendance during the Canadian teams’ home games because it helps keep up the illusion that a pandemic is still happening. Meanwhile, the very next day, David Beckham’s Inter Miami team played the LA Galaxy in the exact same stadium that Toronto and Montreal played in the day before, except the American teams played their games with thousands of fans in attendance. The Canadian government doesn’t want you to see that.

Dear Toronto, it’s time to begin accepting the fact that you are deceived by some of the people you trusted. It’s time we got past this together. The longer you play along with this lie, the more you’re becoming that person on the TV show ‘Cheaters’ who’s shown video evidence of their partner being unfaithful to them over and over again, but you end up believing another one of their lies and you get in the car with them and drive home together while the rest of the world is laughing at you. Unfortunately, Toronto, the rest of the world is laughing at us right now. It’s time we join the rest of the world by taking off your mask, going out for a walk, and smiling at somebody you don’t know. That will be the first step in us returning to normal. The rest of the world around you is already going back to normal and getting on with their lives, but you’re still listening to the worst actors in the history of television.

Medical Tyranny and the Rise of the Fourth Reich

By Guy Crittenden

Totalitarianism returned in 2020. Many missed it, and miss it still. Some saw it right away, as fascism or communism. A few think it's a Chinese takeover, since the "Wuhan virus" originated, we're told, in Wuhan, China. Our world became the British TV series Black Mirror, especially the "Nosedive" episode with its dystopian domestic (social credit) passport system. (Predictive programming.) But it was the globalists, actually. We now live in their police state.

How does it feel? Police state is so... 1980s. It's actually a technocracy – Patrick Wood's term for AI running, oh, everything, balancing economic inputs and outputs, with machines doing all the work (eventually). People like Bill Gates like this idea, as does World Economic Forum (WEF) founder Klaus Schwab. Professor Shoshana Zuboff calls it surveillance capitalism. Call it what you will, it's what we're moving into. When information became the new oil, consumers became the product. Our biodata is to Goldman Sachs what New World gold was to Cortez.

We're being colonized, but it's not nation-on-nation conflict; instead, it's class war. All that power once projected outward onto poor countries from the hyper-capitalist empires has turned inward. In a reign of terror.

The democracies of the industrialized world were taken over in less than 18 months, without a shot fired. No shiny jackboots or tanks – just corporate suits, bland pronouncements from unelected health officials, and masks.

Medical tyranny was key. It was always about the vaccines, and the health passports. But it's more than that. We're about to be altered. Certain elites hope to upload their consciousness into silicon bodies, and live forever. It sounds crazy because it is. The rest of us carbon-based life forms face a less certain future. Gates, Schwab and the Davos crowd think there's too many of us. Ask Ted Turner. Or Henry Kissinger. Or George Soros.

The Georgia Guidestones were recently updated. Turns out it's a living monument. It's first line extols a permanent human population of just 500 million souls. You do the math.

The Deagle military data website predicted plummeting populations, until too many people noticed. Belgian virologist Geert Vanden Bossche and British doctor Vernon Coleman have warned of a potential genocide, as has vaccine industry insider and former Pfizer vice president Dr. Michael Yeadon. They speak of prion disease, encephalitis, sterilization, pathogen priming, the eighth human chromosome and the placenta.

Right now, unvaccinated women working in the same offices as vaccinated people are experiencing devastating menstrual periods. Why?

Have I lost you? Is this too much? Investment experts describe a fourth turning. A hundred-year interest rate cycle is ending and central banks have run out of options. Interest rates can't go lower and endless money printing is bankrupting nations (by design). A debt jubilees is needed. A "great reset." They know this.

Except it's different this time. Sure, the stock market will crash, and a great depression will follow. But the oligarchs don't need us anymore. They have AI and the robots. Digital serfs will code the technologies of the Fourth Industrial Revolution (4IR). They'll be provided a universal basic income (UBI) while competing for Fiverr-style job contracts in the race-to-the-bottom "gig economy."

After that, who knows? Don't buy green bananas, serfs.

It's said world control requires the takeover of just 20 per cent of countries. But they need to be the right ones. The globalists first targeted the Five Eyes nations (Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the USA and the United Kingdom) because of their deep property rights traditions, and common law. These aren't compatible with One World Government. The US is being broken up with civil war, bricks left on BLM routes, and gubernatorial corruption. Americans and Canadians will be herded into megacities built around places like San Francisco and New York. The recalcitrant will be taxed off their farmland. Run too far and the drones will find you. Or the robot dogs.

You will own nothing. And you'll be happy.

Not a shot fired. Stalin, Mao or Hitler wouldn't have believed it. At first I thought in Orwellian terms. You know: 1984... a boot stomping on a human face forever. And much of the world is becoming like Gaza. By mid-2020 I'd encountered Philadelphia researcher Alison McDowel' blog Wrong Kind of Green and the video essays of her explicators, JP and Julie Collins, on their Book of Ours program. I shifted to Huxley's Brave New World. Hadn't familiar with Canadian activist Cory Morningstar's essay collection The Manufacturing of Greta Thunberg and the hijacking of the environment movement.

I can't get others to see it. Only a few. It's like those pictures of computer-generated squiggly lines that are a flat nonsense, until you to squint your eyes and slowly move away from the glass, then suddenly a 3D Tyrannosaurus pops!

You either see it or you don't. And it doesn't help to be shamed or yelled at.

How do I make people see the dinosaur?

The plutocrats have mastered narrative. (That's why they're plutocrats.) They finished consolidating the media after Bill Clinton signed the Telecommunications Act in 1996. Big Pharma is the last significant advertiser. It kills people (and not just with its products). Remember the CIA ice pellet "heart attack" gun? Consider the late president of Tanzania. And scientist Kary Mullis. Gates and Fauci couldn't have the inventor of the PCR test walking through the fourth wall of their psyops, reminding everyone his invention isn't "fit for purpose," could they? A "case-demic" was crucial to people surrendering their constitutional rights.

Absent Mullis, the authorities can announce variants that spread faster and are more deadly. Even name them after targeted countries. And who are they? Some hide behind secretive societies: Bilderbergers, the Council on Foreign Relations, and the high-level Freemasons. A Jesuit Pope now promotes a gene-altering drug containing aborted fetal cells. I didn't see that coming. Some are frontmen, like Gates and Fauci.

Remember the leaked Liberal Party memo? Third wave lockdowns in Q2? Check. Checkpoints at provincial borders? Check. Checkpoints outside the nation's capital? Check.

The magnetic north of my literary compass shifted again recently, from Orwell and Huxley to Franz Kafka. The Castle is my country. I feel his paranoia talking to mask-promoting friends, which are few now. They stare at you like you're crazy, and talk to you in that "please put down the knife" tone.

The propaganda – the mind control – gave them the keys with no shot fired. Well, maybe with a shot, if we consider syringes. A double shot, even.

The image consultants suggested Bill Gates sweaters thoughtfully. Avuncular Mr. Rogers, I mean Gates, now controls the world's seed supply, including that stash of heritage seeds in the Arctic. He's the largest private owner of farmland in America. What does he intend? David DuByne (Adapt 2030) and Christian Westbrook (Ice Age Farmer) warn of family farms being taken out of production. The future is all GMOs. With supply chains broken, a global famine is predicted. People are fleeing the cities. To grow their own food. To homestead. To escape the lockdowns.

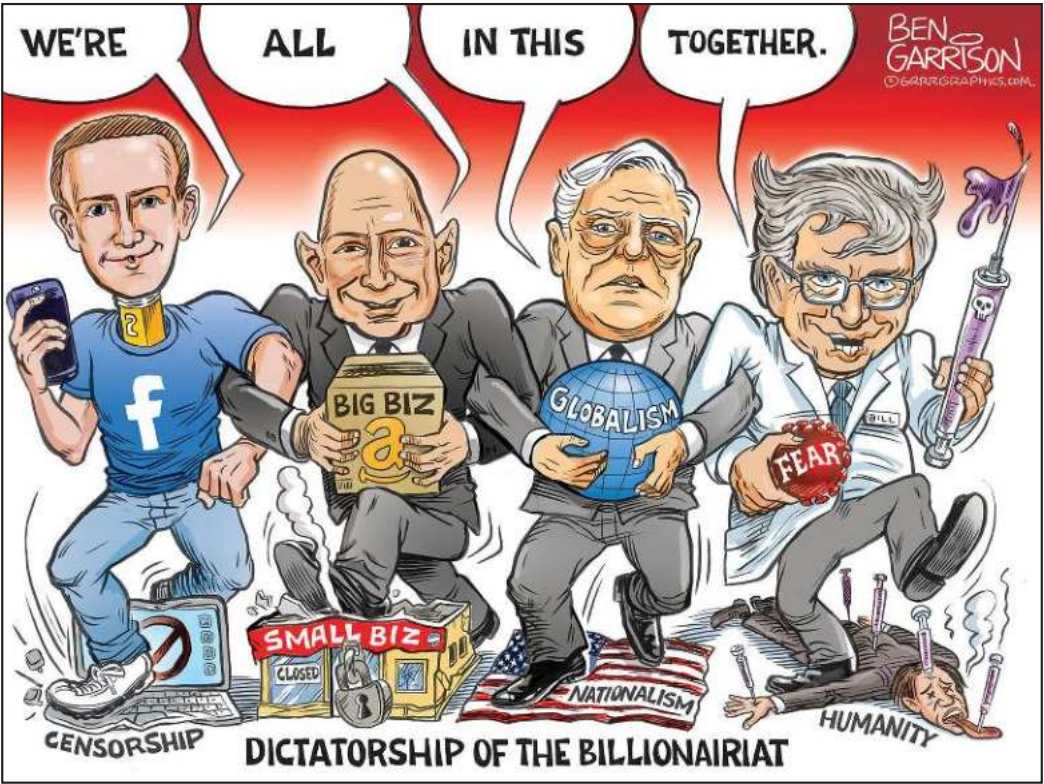

They're running from Gates' vaccines. And the health passport system, which could soon be a microchip embedded in the hand. The Mark of the Beast. They're trying to escape Gate's lab-grown meat, his insect protein, and his plans to dim the sun.

Can we outrun Microsoft's not-subtly-named patent 060606? The technology mines people like crypto, monitoring their biometric data as they perform assigned actions (watching a movie, or playing a video game) and sends it to the cloud. Like his sociopathic mentor J.D. Rockefeller, Gates cornered a market (software, not oil) and is next cornering the healthcare market, selling injectable upgrades to prevent the very virus his associates introduced.

If you liked Windows 95, you're going to love Human 2.0.

The irony.

Gates team sterilized young girls in Africa. Gates paralyzed 500,000 girls in India, and his foundation was kicked out of the country. But he has money – enough to Huxley hung around the Oxford Fabian socialists? The eugenicists? Wasn't his book a warning? And here we are, with people practically begging for more digital baubles, and more totalitarian control.

I don't know why the spell never worked on me. Was it the meditation? Jnana yoga? The Amazonian teacher plants? Maybe it was six years of full-time research into geopolitics. I don't know, but when COVID hit, I was primed. I already knew big business and government were colluding, and destroying whole countries for profit: consider Libya, Yemen, Afghanistan or Syria. Government Mandates Are Destroying Local Food Supplies

I am here today to talk to you about food. Food that is grown the way God intended it. Seeds scattered in real soil and nourished by natural rain and sunlight. Haldimand Norfolk is the 3rd largest food producer and one of the most diverse food producing counties in Canada. From beef to melons and chickens to sweet corn, you can find it all here and that is why we are called Ontario's Garden.

You may be asking why does this matter to me? I am here to tell you from the inside, from the ground, that our food supply chain is under attack and that affordable fresh food & produce is going to disappear.

On March 24, 2020 acting on unconfirmed and misleading data, the Mayors of Haldimand and Norfolk recited false claims to justify the declaration of a state of emergency for both counties. The preamble to the declaration of the state of emergency was to recite the casual statement linking the novel coronavirus to a disease with no evidence to substantiate that claim. "There is potential for transmission of the COVID-19 virus in the community." There was not one single case of sars cov2 in the counties at that time.

Following the state of emergency, our MOH (who by the way was parachuted into our country from HARVARD to lock step us into the agenda 2030) issued an order under section 22 of HPPA to Employers of Seasonal Workers (Migrant Farm Workers) that limits the number of workers quarantining in a private dwelling to 3 people per unit. "There is potential for transmission of the COVID-19 virus in the community"

To put in perspective: In an 8000 sq ft dwelling, only 3 people may quarantine for 14 days. Then they are moved into another unit and 3 more for 14-day quarantine and so on. This is ONLY in our county. We are the only county in Canada with this restriction, so as you can imagine a farm with 500 workers will take many weeks or months even to get work started on the farm.

Due to 26% less workers arriving in spring of 2020 and the fact that spring makes plants grow, 21% of food crops were lost either because they could not get them planted in time or they could not be harvested in time. That is set to increase this year by 5-10%. How can I predict that? Because the number of workers coming is shrinking either due to the halting of flights from Mexico and Caribbean, or because they are testing positive and cannot get onto flights. Or like we are facing here, their country of origin is in lock down.

So a 5-10% reduction every year of fresh food means we are right on target to meet all the "benchmarks" and goals of Agenda 2030, the Rockefeller Lock Step, the Great Reset, whatever you want to call it. 75% less food grown outside in its natural state.

Oh, you will still have food but it will be lab made, computer printed meats, patented seeds grown in patented soil, grown under fake sun with fake rain and fake air. That is not a greenhouse, it is a LABORATORY.

'Well, that's okay Rachel, I will just grow my own food.' Maybe you will. MAYBE. That is IF you can find seeds that produce for more than one year.

'Well, I will raise chickens and have eggs.' MAYBE you will, until your chickens are a threat to the industrial food producers in your area, and so your backyard chickens need to be gassed like they did in England because the massive chicken farm up the way has avian flu.

Or with what Gates is doing... buying up millions of acres in the USA, all the mid-west; Texas, Wyoming, Idaho, and guess what... bringing SICK yes that's right, sick cattle into the county. What that means is your cattle will be destroyed for food safety! Communist Party of China just did it to their hog and pig farmers. Declare a swine flu and kill everyone's pigs now for food safety. Only government managed food production will remain.

NOW you will only get food that is "SAFE" and it will only come from the safety of the laboratories run by the oligarchy which is taking over every aspect of our lives. And we all know by now that most people will choose perceived 'safety' over freedom.

So, what can you do?

1. We must become advocates of real food. Fresh food produced OUTSIDE. Support local farmers. Ask the grocery store to stock local produce.
2. We must demand labelling of PATENTED fruits and vegetables that are bio engineered with animal DNA in them and food additives that stimulate our flavour senses to taste sweet instead of bitter.
3. Please contact your local MPP, MP and let them know that the quarantine measures in Haldimand Norfolk are not about safety. That the public health measures are damaging the food supply and that you want to protect traditional farming.

98% of Canada's farm workers come from Mexico and the Caribbean. Believe me, flights were not cancelled because of families vacationing.

I will leave you with this thought... When is the last time you ate an orange from the grocery store? Maybe you thought "WOW! That is the best orange I have ever tasted. It is SO sweet! And now you will wonder if it really is sweet or if it has been altered to taste super sweet?"

George Carlin quipped the Allies defeated Nazism in World War II, but never fascism. "That was never the plan." The eugenicists didn't go away, either. Instead, they waited until the technology caught up with their designs, when they could re-emerge like cicadas.

It was audacious of the globalists to choose Klaus Schwab as their frontman. He'd make a great James Bond villain, and is only missing the white cat. (Gates has Melinda.) Or the SPARS Pandemic 2024-2028 document that coaches policymakers in propaganda techniques. Or alien "disclosure" and a possible staged invasion.

We'll find out soon enough.

Thus far, I'd score it 10-0 for the globalists. With no shot fired.

Open Letter To Bonnie Henry From Concerned BC Doctor

The first dose of the Moderna vaccine has now been administered to some of my patients in the community of Lytton, BC. This began with the First Nations members of our community in mid-January, 2021. Nine hundred doses have now been administered.

I have been quite alarmed at the high rate of serious side-effects from this novel treatment. From this relatively small number of people vaccinated so far, we have had:

1. Numerous allergic reactions, with two cases of anaphylaxis.
2. One (presumed) vaccine induced sudden death in a 72 year old patient with COPD.
3. This patient complained of being more short of breath continually after receiving the vaccine, and died very suddenly and unexpectedly on day 24, after the vaccine. He had no history of cardiovascular disease.
4. Three people with ongoing and disabling neurological deficits, with associated chronic pain, persisting for more than 10 weeks after their first vaccine. These neurological deficits include; continual and disabling dizziness, generalised or localised neuromuscular weakness, with or without sensory loss. The chronic pain in these patients is either generalised or regional, with or without headaches.

So in short, in our small community of Lytton, BC, we have one person dead, and three people who look as though they will be permanently disabled, following their first dose of the Moderna vaccine. The age of those affected ranges from 38 to 82 years of age.

- So I have a number questions and comments;
1. Are these considered normal and acceptable long term side-effects for gene modification therapy? Judging by medical reports from around the world, our Lytton experience is not unusual.
 2. Do you have any idea what disease processes may have been initiated, to be producing these ongoing neurological symptoms?
 3. Do you have any suggestions as to how I should treat the vaccine induced neuromuscular weakness, the dizziness, the sensory loss, and the chronic pain syndromes in these people, or should they all be simply referred to a neurologist? I anticipate that many more will follow, as the vaccine is rolled out. This was only phase one,

- and the first dose.
4. In stark contrast to the deleterious effects of this vaccine in our community, we have not had to give any medical care what-so-ever, to anyone with Covid-19. So in our limited experience, this vaccine is quite clearly more dangerous than Covid-19.
 5. I realise that every medical therapy has a risk-benefit ratio, and that serious disease calls for serious medicine. But we now know that the - recovery rate of Covid-19, is similar to the seasonal flu, in every age category. Furthermore, it is well known that the side effects following the second shot, are significantly worse than the first. So the worst is still to come.

6. It must be emphasised, that these people were not sick people, being treated for some devastating disease. These were previously healthy people, who were offered an experimental therapy, with unknown long-term side-effects, to protect - them against an illness that has the same mortality rate as the flu. Sadly, their lives have now been ruined.

7. It is normally considered a fundamental principle of medical ethics, to discontinue a clinical trial if significant harm is demonstrated from the treatment under investigation.
 8. So my last question is this; Is it medically ethical to continue this vaccine rollout, in view of the severity of these life altering side-effects, after just the first shot? In Lytton, BC, we have an incidence of 1 in 225 of severe life altering side-effects, from this experimental gene modification therapy.
- I have also noticed that these vaccine induced side effects are going almost entirely unreported, by those responsible for the vaccine rollout. I am aware that this is often a problem, with vaccines in general, and that delayed side-effects after vaccines, are sometimes labelled as being “coincidences”, as causality is often hard to prove. However, in view of the fact that this is an experimental treatment, with no long-term safety data, I think that perhaps this issue should be addressed too.

Furthermore, I have noticed that the provincial vaccine injury reporting form, which was clearly designed for conventional vaccines, does not even have any place to report vaccine injuries of the nature and severity that we are seeing from this new mRNA therapy.

It is now clearly apparent with medical evidence from around the world, that the side-effect profiles of the various gene modification therapies against Covid-19, have been vastly understated by their manufacturers, who were eager to prove their safety.

Thank you for your attention to this critically urgent public health matter. Yours sincerely,

Warning Signs That Canada Is Being Preconditioned For A Communist State Takeover

By Olga S

I would never have imagined that one day I would express my critical political views in Canada. Being a Russian immigrant myself, and being raised under a communist regime, I have a clear understanding of what communism ideology really means. I came to Canada for freedom and to provide my kids with opportunities and a better life. I am grateful and thankful to God that I became Canadian. I have traveled to many countries and have always said that Canada is the best Country in the whole world.

Unfortunately, I cannot say this now, because during this fraudulent pandemic we lost our freedom which is the most precious gift we received from God. What’s happening in Canada now reminds me of the Russian communist regime.

We did not have the freedom of speech, we were condemned and intimidated for attending a church service. In the beginning of the communist regime many pastors were disgraced and jailed. Dear Canadians, does that tell you anything? One hundred years later, our brave Canadian pastors who didn’t betray God were jailed and harassed by the government.

After the communism era, there was a political and economic shift that happened in Russia called Perestroika which signifies “the Great Reset”. Our economy was completely destroyed during the great reset. Manufacturing companies and the agricultural industry collapsed, leaving the population without stable income and creating the “bread line”.

During this time, as with many other professionals, I lost my job as an engineer. Luckily, I turned my hobby of hairstyling into a business and opened a hair salon.

In the beginning, I was happy when I could run my private business, but this reality was shattered when the Russian mafia extorted money from many small businesses and a refusal meant the destruction of the business’ assets or even worse your life could be taken. The businesses were not protected by police or government because corrupt police covered for the criminals.

We see a similar situation today in Canada, only the Russian mafia are replaced by health inspectors who bully small businesses into permanent closure and the police protect all these corrupt health inspectors.

Millennials were not alive to witness the horrors of communism around the world up close, and therefore underestimate the government’s willingness to impose communist ideology on the people.

It now appears the Canadian government is creating the necessary conditions to gradually transform the country into a communist state. You’ll own nothing, and you’ll be happy. In Soviet Union most of our apartments belonged to the government.

I will tell you another two warning signs that Canada is being preconditioned for a communist state takeover.

Ministry of truth. Mainstream media and Big Tech social media corporations are working together to cancel opposing information from alternative media sources, the citizens have been brainwashed into believing a false reality. The same thing happened in Soviet Union, we believed that we lived in the freest and safest country in the world.

Keeping people in constant fear is the foundation of a Communist State. Propagandizing a population into a state of constant fear allows a government to establish specific measures and regulations which will convince them to endure all levels of disturbances, no matter how extreme, during the created crisis.

Communist ideology is on the rise in Canada. And we can stop it all together. Just do not comply to covid regulations.

I will tell you why I don’t comply. Firstly, I am mother of three children and want my kids to live in a free country

I honor the memory of my two grandfathers who fought against fascism in the second world war.

In order to pursue your purpose, we need to sacrifice something.

I don’t shop in the big box stores. I buy my food directly from farms, which need our support.

I do not, under any condition, wear a mask. This year I lost my ski membership in Chicopee because I refused to wear a mask. I told them I will wear a mask to protect my face from the cold. But Glen Eden honored my mask exemption. We need to boycott all businesses who require mandatory masks and we should support all businesses who honor mask exemption.

ICU/ER Nurse Speaks On Emotional Manipulation

Many nurses have called for lockdowns. We who value freedom and human dignity are dismayed that media and politicians have used these siren calls to leverage the destruction of basic constitutional protections against arbitrary government force.

Across the globe, people were told they cannot go to work, send their kids to school, attend a gym class, open their business, or even visit the playground. To justify this horrific government overreach, news and social media portrayed doctors and nurses crying and pleading for the public’s compliance.

We must take a critical look at these fallacies of emotional appeal and bias.

An ICU nurse says, “If you had to see someone struggling to breathe as I have, then you would understand! I’m working on the frontline where people are suffering! You’ve never had to hold someone’s hand while they take their last, dying breath! Please stay home for my sake and yours!”

Such whinging and pleading is a brazen appeal to emotion. By implication, because of suffering, basic principles of freedom must be squashed.

Guilt, anxiety, and fear are very powerful negative emotions. Consider the statement: “Who are you to think you should be allowed to get a haircut when it could result in someone stuck on a ventilator in the ICU!” A statement like this arouses feelings of guilt.

Positive emotions can be weaponized too. An appeal to empathy or compassion comes in the form, “It might break your heart to see your children deprived of their little-league sports and forced to wear a mask, but just think about the elderly people or those with comorbidities, we need to care about them, not just ourselves and our children.” In the above examples, appeal to emotion can override our sense of what is true. Hence, critical thinkers must ask questions of cause and effect. Does getting a haircut or my child playing T-ball truly cause someone to get stuck on a ventilator and die in ICU?

Seeing someone struggle to breathe and require invasive medical procedures is stressful and perhaps traumatizing for nurses. However, dealing with these challenges is what critical care nurses signed up for. Yearly, critical care nurses and doctors might spend hundreds or thousands of hours in the presence of acute suffering where people are in pain and cannot breathe properly.

Understandably, experience shapes the perception of reality. In the context of Covid19, the ICU nurse is spending their time seeing the worst of the worst victims. For multiple twelve-hour days a week, month after month, an ICU nurse sees the worst cases possible.

Seeing this devastation can lead to a cognitive bias. False extrapolation leads to the emotional conclusion that all cases look like this. Even though objective data demonstrates a recovery rate of well over 99% for Covid19, the ICU nurse is immersed in a context, day after day, where everyone is extremely sick and potentially dying.

Witnessing the worst-case scenarios and a constant media and political campaign of Covid19, some nurses are tempted to go to media and emotionally blivate about the need to “stay home and save lives” while neglecting the broader, negative impacts of prolonged shutdowns of society. But this kind of bias is not unique to the pandemic.

For example, many obstetricians and maternity nurses believe home birthing children should be banned because they routinely witness worst-case birthing outcomes while ignoring the inherent risk associated with hospitals. Many pediatricians believe backyard trampolines should be banned because they treat the worst-case outcomes of trauma while ignoring the broader context of joy and exercise they provide.

Sound public policy requires seeing the forest for the trees. With Covid19, our constitutionally protected freedom has been severely damaged by amplifying the cries of nurses working among the sickest trees while ignoring the health of the forest.

Police in Alberta Actually ‘Stole’ A Church

By Timothy Himes

On April 7 2021, the RCMP swarmed GraceLife Church in Edmonton, Alberta and proceeded to fence off the building, and eventually the entire church property.

This is in reaction to Pastor James Coates violating Alberta Health Services restrictions again and returning to the pulpit on March 28, a week after spending 35 days in a maximum security prison for this very same thing. GraceLife Church is to remain closed until “it can demonstrate the ability to comply with AHS restrictions”.

The church had previously defied AHS orders beginning in December, causing a closure order to be issued in January. In February, the church was charged with exceeding the allowable capacity of 15%.

The pastor was imprisoned and only released when he pleaded guilty to a charge of breaching bail. He was also fined $1500 however, the judge stated his 35 days in custody would count as credit for the fine.

For weeks now, the property has dozens of officers standing on watch while a constant vigil of protestors, sometimes hundreds, gather at the roadside. The adjoining property is owned by a church member who has allowed the protestors to use his land in order to avoid fines.

The result is, instead of a short weekly gathering, there is now a large ongoing vigil of sometimes hundreds. Their plan to limit gatherings seems to have backfired. Small church services have taken place there in the open field. Larger services have taken place at secret locations, to avoid $1200 tickets, with several hundred in attendance.

Some incidents have arisen, including protestors mistakenly parking on First Nations lands, and a section of fence being pulled down on April 11. Protestors helped to restore the fence, realizing it’s only symbolic of the greater issue. Tempers flared as opposing views were exchanged. It concluded with one of the instigators being charged by police.

Still now (April 24th) the church remains in police custody.

Incidentally, what is the cost of having 30 RCMP officers guard a church around the clock? Is this what we pay them for? Are there no real crimes happening anymore? Are we really ok with this?

Not far away though, thousands of people are shopping at West Edmonton Mall everyday, but a few hundred people are forbidden from gathering for their weekly worship service.

The photo of the church wrapped with an 8 foot steel fence is shocking but serves as a perfect reminder of all our rights and freedoms that are in jeopardy. This goes beyond religious freedom. Every Canadian should be greatly offended and be speaking out, loudly, against such strong overreach by the government.

I really can’t believe this is happening in Canada and that there isn’t more outrage over such a repulsive series of events. This police occupation of a church amounts to religious persecution!

Section 176 of the Criminal Code of Canada clearly states that a person who obstructs a religious service is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment.

When did we stop following the rule of law in Canada?

Pastor Coates now awaits his approaching trial on May 3 where he, and the church, will be represented by the Justice Centre for Constitutional Freedoms. (JCCF.ca) Although the JCCF has prepared extensive scientific and expert witness medical evidence, the defence is being denied the opportunity to challenge the constitutional validity of the chief medical officers orders. As well, the government will not be required to produce scientific evidence in support of CMO Deena Hinshaw’s orders.

Lawyer John Carpay, president of the Justice Centre,

“After 13 months of violating Charter freedoms, the Alberta Government refuses to present evidence in support of lockdowns in Court, and unfortunately the courts have permitted the government to delay facing accountability in regard to Charter violations. Is it clear that the government’s approach to any challenge to its lockdown policies is to withhold the evidence and delay as long as it can. By May 3, the government will have had 14 months to assemble proper medical and scientific evidence to justify lockdowns and the resulting violations of our fundamental Charter freedoms. For the Alberta Government to request that it not be required to provide evidence on May 3 in support of Dr. Hinshaw’s Orders, while at the same time barricading the church, is both reprehensible and pathetic.

The Alberta Government supposedly has enough medical and scientific evidence to shut down hundreds of small businesses, pushing many of them into bankruptcy, and to cancel over 20,000 medically necessary surgeries, and to force Albertans into a third lockdown. But when asked to produce this medical and scientific evidence at trial, the Alberta government declares itself incapable of doing so.

Pastor Coates is defending freedom of association and freedom of peaceful assembly, which are freedoms exercised by the entire population, not just churchgoers. This is likely the first time in Canadian history that a federal or provincial government has directly restricted religious freedom. Unscientific and arbitrary health orders have been imposed by an unelected and politically appointed doctor, whose Orders are not scrutinized by elected Members of the Legislative Assembly.”

So these folks hope to continue their vicious charade while making a mockery of the justice system. The public now knows they’ve been continually lied to throughout the past year. Maybe we can start placing bets on exactly which day this house of cards will collapse?

It would be laughable if there wasn’t so much devastation resulting from these lockdowns. The GraceLife congregation has shown, with their continued secret Sunday services, that the building isn’t the church, it’s in fact, the people.

I commend their faith and perseverance in the face of such corrupted forces. At its core, this is really a spiritual battle.

Dear Abuse-Denier

By Ken Lori

Where an organism injures another there is abuse. One who suffers from sustained and repeated lockdowns is a victim of abuse.

Those in favor of sustained and repeated lockdowns support and perpetuate lockdown-induced depression, loneliness, decreased physical health, drug overdoses, suicide, mental health crises, spousal abuse, child abuse and marital breakdown.

You have proven ruthlessly unsympathetic to the devastation rendered by such sustained and repeated abuse while those of us opposed to lockdowns care deeply about victims of COVID-19. We feel badly when someone dies of COVID-19 but you don't seem to feel the same when a lockdown victim commits suicide.

Incidentally, as a social worker I have never questioned a client's pain. I don't tell them they shouldn't feel victimized, that they have no right to share their feelings or that they shouldn't seek out the root of the problem. Should a victim of domestic violence now distrust all men? I don't blame her for feeling that way.

Pro-lockdowners tend not to listen to victims of lockdowns, preferring to ridicule instead. Imagine if I ridiculed my clients this way.

One who is pro-lockdown is pro-abuse, not only by participation, pressure upon peers and shaming, but by doubling down the insensitivity after victims report their sustained and repeated suffering.

In this way you perpetuate disparity and discriminate against victims of lockdowns as would groups, societies and religions, say, against women and minorities.

You are, essentially, a bigot not applying statistics, common sense, love-based philosophy or sound argument to justify your hostility toward lockdown opposers and victims but prejudice ingested without question from leaders, trend-setters and thought police through media – the way blind and deaf bigotry always spreads.

Shockingly, you're likely "offended" by victims of lockdowns.

Like bigots, racists and sexists of old you have adopted the common view of the common people socialized to blame lockdown victims and ignore their suffering and justified stance.

In Canada, we seek to understand then change a system or institution known to victimize. Where more than one complains of institutional indignity we tend not to blame victims but strive to analyze the source... except with respect to the mass abuse of lockdowns.

It is true, abuse-denier: with respect to lockdown victims you're a victim-blamer, your views steeped in neither science nor soul.

Heartlessly, not only do victim-blaming-abusers-then-deniers seek not to understand (much less empathize with lockdown victims) but hold them at fault for their involuntary responses (i.e. sadness, depression, anger, hatred) to isolation.

Yes, trauma suffered by lockdown victims is involuntary (akin to the trauma of child and spousal abuse) and 100% at the hands of human beings (true also for victims of child and spousal abuse). That you are insensitive to involuntary responses to human-caused suffering reveals you to be sadistic.

Incidentally, it might interest you that, after thirteen months of obedience, duty and sacrifice, our resistance to lockdown is also involuntary, more visceral than rational, not a manipulated theory or "outlook" groomed by government but ethically-sourced in sustained suffering unnaturally cultivated.

But you have no time or tolerance for any of that logical biological nonsense. Your "views" are everything, and nothing – including the unnecessary suffering of another perpetuated by those views – will change your mind to feel our pain.

No victim of lockdowns has chosen their suffering nor the feelings and behaviors caused as a result yet you refuse to accept this.

It is clear: your complicity with such hurtful laws implicates you in any suffering that has come to any person as a result of such laws.

What's worse is without any conclusive proof that lockdowns are healthy or effective in its objectives, you're a poorly-informed and insensitive accomplice to any harm that comes to any child, adult, senior, worker, business owner, spouse or student as a result of lockdowns. You're the government's stooge set up to take the fall when years down the road History blames the fearful for going along with such a reckless plan.

(Speaking of the fearful, where are all the cops, medical personnel and insiders who see the victims first hand? I've heard you speak privately about what you observe but fear to repeat but it is you who holds the Truth that will set us free, and risking your job to save thousands is, quite simply, the ethical and "essential" thing to do. It's why you hold Jesus, Buddha, Ghandi, Nelson Mandella, Martin Luther King and Rosa Parks in such high esteem – and all of these honorable folk risked not just employment but life.)

But I understand.

I understand the source of your stunted attitude is no different than that of any prejudiced attitude so controlled and conditioned.

You've been brainwashed and bullied by the collective, unaware of the intellectual abuse inflicted upon you by the government and media. Like all abused you don't understand that what you're suffering isn't normal or healthy until someone explains it, and that you've now become your abusive parent – metaphorically speaking.

Nevertheless it can't be denied: you're abusing and abusive and, like any abuser, you intimidate victims (i.e. anyone who doesn't agree with your view of lockdowns) by telling us how deserving we are, how stupid/wrong we are and how much more we'll suffer should we understand the Truth of our hell or attempt to escape or report it.

According to you: not only is our suffering not important but our desperation to escape the suffering will cause the spread of COVID-19.

Let it be known: Lethal ignorance causes and sustains depression, loneliness, decreased physical health, drug overdoses, suicide, mental health crises, spousal abuse, child abuse and marital breakdown. You're an abuse-denier who ought to be subject to the penalties imposed upon anyone who intentionally and over time inflicts then denies mental or bodily harm upon a person, refuses to feel their victim's pain then self-righteously and without spine joins the mob to hang such victims in the village square.

It is time. Time to confess your crimes of abuse and denial, let us victims go and be eternally grateful we don't have your vicious state-controlled mind to respond in equal measure.

Right to Compensation

Dear Leaders of our Federal, Provincial and Local Entities, City Councils and Media,

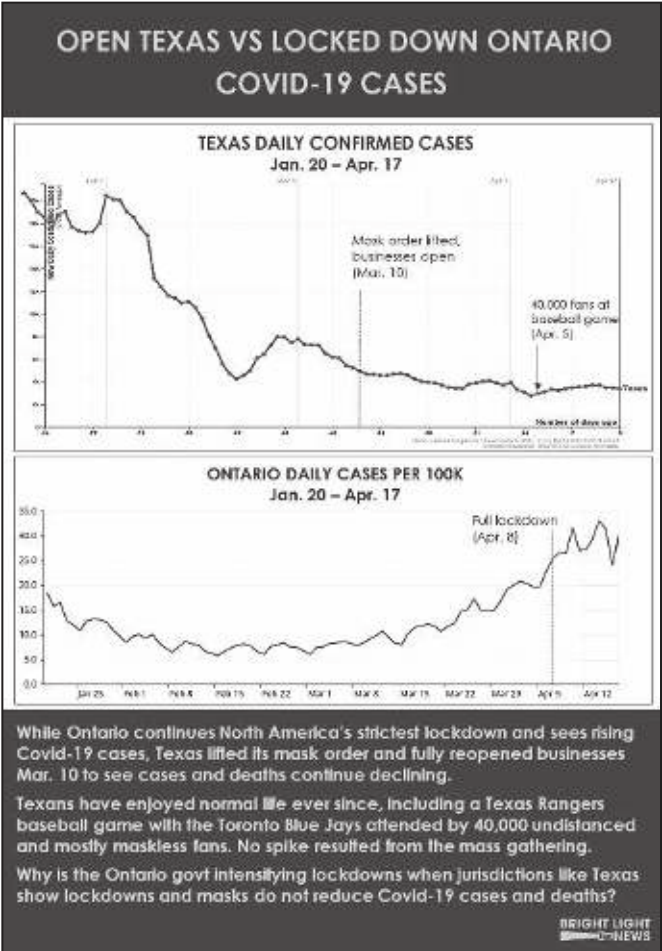

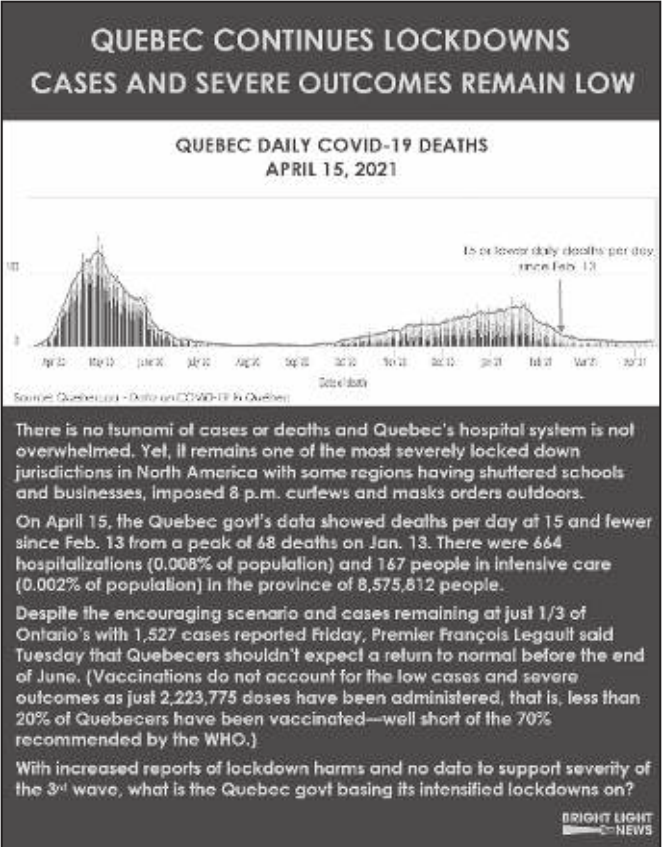

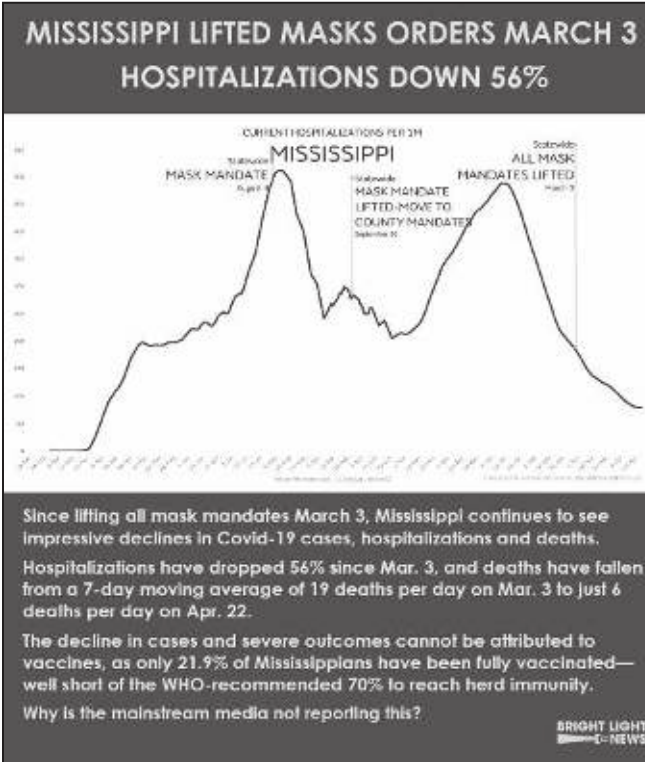

Before paying my final property tax bill, which will arrive in June, I would like to know how Greater Vancouver citizens will be compensated, tax-wise, for the great lessening of some services, and stopping the others, which have occurred since March 2020. I will be expecting some kind of rebate from the final tax bill regarding: schools, recreation, parks, libraries, services for the disabled, hospitals, courts, festivals - just to name a few. Thank you for your prompt response to this message.

And for those of us who don't own property, I am herewith, advising you that I am going to stop paying taxes. As due to this shut down, we have lost our businesses, we have lost income, our children our suffering mentally. And frankly, the income tax is going straight to the Bank of Canada, that's keeping the royals and politicians' bank accounts fat and perpetuating this scam!

A concerned citizen,

There Comes A Time When One Must Take A Stand

By Elizabeth Fildey

Isaac was devastated. Last month with no notice, our adult son with special-needs was terminated from his day program simply for stating he didn't plan to get the COVID shot. His day program was his world. It was where his friends were, where he learned life-skills, where he did enrichment activities and exercised some independence away from his parents.

My husband and I have been advocating for our son his entire life. It never once struck us, however, that we would have to advocate for his right to decide, for himself, what he does want or doesn't want to put into his body in the guise of "medicine".

The sudden termination took place following an explanation by the program administrator of The LifeSkills Centre Inc. to day program participants about how they must have the COVID shot in order to continue to attend. Prior to the statement being made to the participants, this requirement had never been communicated as a new policy to the parents or guardians. Our son was simply told in writing he was terminated, apparently because he stated his choice, before the shot had even been offered to him.

The letter, tellingly, did not actually state the reason for the termination. It simply stated "In light of our conversation on Wednesday, March 24, 2021, we have decided to terminate our services ... The LifeSkills Centre Inc. has the absolute right to amend the terms of this Agreement ... by providing fourteen (14) days prior written notice to the parent/guardian/client."

He is crushed. He now has nowhere else to go for a day program and has been relegated to the bottom of the waiting list for services.

As anyone close to a person with special needs knows, helping them acquire friends and a meaningful social life is challenging. Throughout elementary and high school, Isaac was usually left on the sidelines; other students, not understanding how to interact and involve a child with special needs, would enjoy their play and activities oblivious to him sitting alone. The day program he was in for the last three years with same-age peers was a God-send.

I don't know exactly what led to the decision by the program leader. Was it fear, was it manipulation by the mainstream media, or is it becoming a given that the COVID shot will be required in order to receive services?

Our non-political, previously non-activist family has been ignited. We have filed a Human Rights application, have been speaking and writing publicly, and have solicited the assistance of our Ontario Member of Provincial Legislature.

There comes a time when one must take a stand. I have never been a public activist - although I have advocated on behalf of my son for years. Now, I am publicly advocating for everyone, for the right of the individual to make the choice about whether or not they will accept this COVID shot. I do not want this COVID shot requirement to become the norm for buying, selling or receiving. That is wrong! We possess a God-given right to bodily sovereignty.

May God keep our land, glorious and free.

Lockdowns: a treatment worse than the disease?

have become victims of extreme peer pressure that include vicious slander, shaming, defamation, and guilt by association, along with open calls for censorship.

People who oppose or question lockdowns have been accused of having blood on their hands, their jobs threatened, with many choosing to stay quiet rather than face the mob. In an effort to "keep people safe" during these trying times, social media giants like YouTube do not allow for any medical information that contradicts health authorities or the W.H.O., no matter how true.

Death of Critical Thinking

Authorities tell us to "trust the experts," but what they really mean by this is trust the selected few and under no circumstance do your own research or trust experts deemed to be unofficial. They say that questioning lockdowns or vaccines is "selfish" and "anti-science". They exclaim that doing what you are told makes you "a good person."

Bullying and targeting morals is one way to prevent critical thinking, but fear of death and guilt are also effective. Also, our minds get muddled with ever rising cognitive dissonance surrounding case counts and ever changing lockdown restrictions make it hard to see reality for what it really is. Facts like: People under 40 have a 99.97% chance of surviving the "COVID-19 virus," and the PCR test is being misused, and begin to have no meaning at all.

Death of History

In order to paint the illusion that masking is a normal reaction to a pandemic, the world's history of pandemic responses is being re-written. Authorities claim that all citizens wore face masks during the 1918 Spanish flu, which is simply not true!

As far as we know, face masks were only mandated among the general public in one city: San Francisco (and a group of nearly 5,000 citizens known as the "Anti-Mask League of San Francisco" fought back against the ruling AND WON!) The mask mandate in San Francisco lasted under 6 weeks. Mask use was also briefly seen in a few other cities, in police stations, government buildings and hospitals and only at the height of the pandemic. In fact, if you were to search YouTube for "1919 footage" or "scenes at the end of WWI" you would come across many videos of crowds of people without a mask in sight.

While mask mandates have been added, other parts of our pandemic response history have been erased. For example, quinine (a.k.a. "Hydroxychloroquine") was a commonly cited, successful treatment for the 1918 flu. And there seems to be no evidence of lockdowns or school shut-downs ever lasting for long. An overly authoritative pandemic response is not and was not ever normal.

In closing, the declared COVID-19 pandemic response via lockdown has been devastating, killing many aspects of society with almost immeasurable consequence. A year ago we didn't have much data, but today we do.

Lockdowns are not effective. Countries that never locked-down like Sweden, South Korea and Turkmenistan don't even appear on Worldometer's top 25 countries of "covid deaths" per million. States like Florida never imposed state-wide lockdowns or masks mandates and their cases continue to go down. Texas, Arizona and over a dozen others followed suit, all with similar results. In Belgium the people have even gone as far as challenging the government's system of implementing the lockdown measures with a lawsuit. They won, and the Belgian state was ordered to "lift all COVID-19 measures within 30 days".

If it is truly a matter of life and death then we must seriously examine the effects that lockdowns have on our society. It's time we analyzed these reactionary measures from a risk perspective. Truly weighing the devastation that lockdowns have, no matter what the media or politicians say. It is time to separate fact from fiction, and see things for what they really are.

“The people have the power. All we have to do is awaken the power in the people.”

– John Lennon

“One of the saddest lessons of history is this: If we’ve been bamboozled long enough, we tend to reject any evidence of the bamboozle. We’re no longer interested in finding out the truth. The bamboozle has captured us. It’s simply too painful to acknowledge, even to ourselves, that we’ve been taken. Once you give a charlatan power over you, you almost never get it back.”

– Carl Sagan

“It was possible, no doubt, to imagine a society in which wealth, in the sense of personal possessions and luxuries, should be evenly distributed, while power remained in the hands of a small privileged caste. But in practice such a society could not long remain stable. For if leisure and security were enjoyed by all alike, the great mass of human beings who are normally stupefied by poverty would become literate and would learn to think for themselves; and when once they had done this, they would sooner or later realise that the privileged minority had no function, and they would sweep it away. In the long run, a hierarchical society was only possible on a basis of poverty and ignorance.”

A List Of Some Of The Most Absurd Things That Have Happened In Recent Weeks

- Forbes estimates the world’s billionaires are worth a combined $13.1 trillion, and are a “staggering 86% richer than a year ago.” Forbes also reports its annual list of the world’s billionaires “exploded” over the past year to an unprecedented 2,755 people.
- After numerous reports in the US of people accidentally being injected with a saline solution at vaccination centers, it was discovered that at least half a dozen people in Vaughan, Ontario were injected with saline instead of the COVID-19 vaccine.
- Ontario’s “emergency brake” plan, introduced on April 3 prohibits virtual concerts from taking place in local venues.
- Face masks that were distributed throughout Canada, including millions sent to schools and daycares across Quebec, are being recalled after a toxic carbon coating was found on the mask’s surface. The grey and blue masks, identified by the code SNN200642 from the supplier Metallifer, are now being recalled after they were found to be coated with “Nanoform graphene.” Health Canada’s “preliminary assessment” found that graphene particles had “some potential to cause early lung toxicity.”
- Only those who had received the COVID-19 vaccine were allowed to safely evacuate from St. Vincent after the Caribbean island nation’s La Soufriere volcano erupted. Prime Minister Ralph Gonsalves said in a press conference this decision was made due to pressure from surrounding islands.
- Anti-lockdown celebrity Chris Sky found out he has been added to Canada’s “no-fly” list, a list reserved only for terrorists or suspected terrorists, after being barred from flying to Calgary to give a speech at a freedom protest.
- A Montréal freedom protester was fined $1546 for pulling his mask off for a few seconds to unlock his phone with facial ID. In Montréal, masks are required in outdoor public spaces. Montréal has issued millions of dollars worth of tickets at freedom protests in the past year.
- The European Medicines Agency (EMA) admits there is a ‘clear’ link between AstraZeneca’s Covid vaccine (and likely J&J’s vaccine) and a rare form of potentially deadly blood clots that has previously not been known to occur in healthy, unmedicated people. Experts believe the jab may cause the body to produce antibodies – normally used to fight off viruses – which mistake platelets in the blood for foreign invaders and attack them. The condition almost exclusively affects young women between the ages of 22-49.
- Despite stay-at-home orders being in effect for Ontario due to “overwhelmed hospitals,” Sunnybrook’s COVID field hospital (built weeks before the current lockdown) has yet to see a single patient.
- Trudeau has announced a deal with Pfizer for millions of boosters shoots through till 2024.
- Vitamin D is “fake news” according to our federal Health Minister Patty Hajdu. Despite admitting that most Canadians have a deficiency, Health Canada doesn’t actively recommend supplementing vitamin D, and vitamin D blood testing is not OHIP-insured (unless you have Osteoporosis or a similar condition). This isn’t the first time Canadians have been told vitamins were fake news. Last year, Dietitians of Canada advised the public that “You cannot boost your immune system through diet. No specific food, supplement, or natural health product will prevent you from catching COVID-19. ... Please follow the advice of Public Health Officials. Do not spread misinformation.”

- Biden administration has just spent 1 billion dollars on their vaccine propaganda campaign. He’s also spending nearly $3 billion to counter alternative news and of Americans who are “anti-lockdown” and reporting those individuals to federal, state, and local law enforcement. They claim to be doing this to “proactively identify and assess potential threats to the Postal Service, it’s employees and customers, and its overall mail processing and transportation network.”

- Canadian government is introducing an internet control bill. The first of its kind legislation, if successful, will force social media platforms to remove content deemed harmful (including “hurtful” language against politicians) “within 24 hours of having it being flagged.” The heritage minister explained that “ultimately” the goal of tighter internet control “is to create a safer environment for all people online.”

- The CDC finally admits: intense disinfectants are likely doing more harm than good: “Fogging, fumigation, and other such theatrical performances of industrial cleanliness can easily do more harm than good when it comes to human health.”

- A senior Ontario government source says schools are safe despite The Ontario Teacher’s Federation “obstruction (to restart school) at every possible step.” The federation, who also owns the Cadillac Fairview Corporation, owns stocks in a handful of vaccine manufacturers, including: Pfizer, Moderna, and Johnson & Johnson, as well as big box stores like Costco. The Teacher’s fund closed out 2020 with net assets of $221.2 billion, up $13.8 billion from a year earlier.

- Mere days after Ontario Premier Doug Ford implemented provincial border checkpoints, Ottawa police announced they will cease 24-hour checkpoints between Ottawa and Quebec after lineups grew to 13km long. They will instead be conducting “rotating checkpoints” throughout the city as only “essential traveling” is allowed. OPP are still conducting armed checkpoints at the Manitoba-Ontario border.

- Over 87,000 Americans died of overdoses in the 12 months leading to September 2020, a 30% increase from the previous year, according to newly released US federal data. An increase in drug use, combined with the closing of drug abuse programs, and using alone is thought to have led to this increase. The biggest spike occurred in April and May, when shutdowns were strictest.

- Peel Police suspended Sgt. Paul Brown after hugging and agreeing with human rights protesters outside of Huf Gym, just outside of Toronto.

- At least 55 of America’s largest corporations paid no taxes last year on billions of dollars in profits. 26 of the companies listed, including FedEx, and Nike, are among those found to have avoided paying any federal income tax for at least 3 straight years, even though they reported a combined income of $77 billion. The biggest upward transfer of wealth in American history, the $2.2 trillion CARES ACT, passed last year to help business survive the pandemic restrictions, included a provision that allowed businesses to use losses in 2020 to offset profits earned in previous years.

- Israeli study finds that those who have received both doses of Pfizer’s COVID-19 vaccine, and still got infected, were 8 times more likely to be infected with the South African variant compared to infected people who were unvaccinated. Infected people who received one dose of the vaccine were also more likely to get the UK variant. Pfizer is currently working on a 3rd booster shot to address these variants.
- YouTube finally admits their algorithms favors corporations/mainstream media and suppresses independent journalists when searching for anything “news related.” YouTube’s CEO ironically stated in an interview that occurred days prior to her accepting the Freedom of Expression Award, (from a YouTube-funded First Amendment group), It’s easy to “make up content and post it from your basement” so we boost “authoritative sources.”
- It has been revealed in legal documents that the US postal service has been tracking social media accounts
